The Stowe-Byron Article—Denial of its Authenticity by Lady Byron's Solicitors—The Boat Race—Thanks to the Thames Conservancy.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The solicitors of Lady BYRON'S family have written a communication to the London journals, distinctly stating that the article of Mrs. STOWE, in the Atlantic Monthly, on the reason of the separation of Lord and Lady BYRON, is not a complete or authentic statement, and does not involve any direct evidence. Nothing is communicated but recollections of a conversation had thirteen years since, and impressions derived from manuscript read under great excitement. Without conceding that Mrs. STOWE'S narrative contains a complete account of the relations between Lord and Lady BYRON, they protest against it as a gross breach of trust and confidence; as inconsistent with Mrs. STOWE'S recommendations to Lady BYRON, and a violation of the express terms of her will. Lady BYRON'S representatives and descendants absolutely disclaim all countenance of the article, which was published without their privity or consent.

The News thinks Mr. STOWE'S narrative does not contain the whole truth, but is probably true as far as it goes. It cannot see that she has done anything but make a fair and valuable contribution to the veracity and exactitude of history.

The Harvard and Oxford crews have united in a note to the Thames Conservancy, thanking them for their exertions in keeping a clear course.

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—Cardinal CULLEN has issued a pastoral letter, forbidding parents to send their children to the national model schools on pain of deprivation of sacraments.

Mr. WILLAN, the bow oar of the Oxford crew, has written a letter to the London Times, explaining how the Oxfords beat the Harvards by only a length and three-quarters. He says that just before they (Oxfords) reached the ship at Mortlake they were four or five boat-lengths ahead, when a row boat in the stream caused them to lose a length for fear of fouling. In addition to this, having started a certain distance above the aqueduct at Putney, they expected to row only an equal distance above the ship at Mortlake; but having rowed that distance, and not reaching the judge, they thought that the placing of the flagboat had been forgotten, so they paddled on until they came in. The Harvard men all this time rowed with the same pluck and determination which they had showed through the previous part of the race, and gained considerably at the finish. Mr. WILLAN says the Oxford crew fully acquiesce in the decision of the judge.

The Harvard men have sailed on the steamer City of Antwerp for New-York. They dined yesterday with Mr. DUDLEY, the American Consul at Liverpool, and lunched with the INMANS before sailing.

The London Times on the Chinese Treaties.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Times to-day says recent information of undoubted authenticity contradicts the late rumors that the American treaty with China had been rejected. Prince KUNG in no way repudiates the treaty. His delay in ratifying it is owing to his desire to first complete the negotiations with the European Powers. The Times adds: "Whether Mr. BULINGAME is negotiating for the advantage of any particular Power or not is of no consequence if his negotiations have the effect of bringing China out of her isolation. The merits of the American treaty are unquestionable. The great point is that the Chinese should recognize their capability of being impersonated and be bound by agreements concluded in the names of their representatives. Had this treaty been rejected, it would appear that China had not learned the significance of her own decision to appoint ambassadors."

Demands of the Catholic Bishops—Funeral of a Fenian.

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—The Roman Catholic Bishops have met here and adopted resolutions demanding an exclusive Catholic College, endowment by the State, the division of the property of royal and endowed schools, the alteration of Queen's Colleges to denominational institutions, and a general land bill for Ireland.

The funeral of the Fenian, DALTON, took place to-day at Glasnevin. A procession of about two hundred men, wearing green emblems, followed the remains to the cemetery.

Further Discussion on the Senatus Consultum—Four Articles Adopted—Another Speech of Prince Napoleon—It is Called Scandalous—M. Magne's New Financial Scheme—The Empress in Paris To-day.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—In the Senate yesterday Prince NAPOLEON made another speech, wherein he gave utterance to very liberal views, calling for additional reforms, including a more complete responsibility of the Ministry.

The Minister of the Interior in reply protested against the ideas presented by the Prince, adding significantly that those ideas would never govern the Council so long as the present Ministers should retain the confidence of the Emperor.

The discussion was continued in the Senate to-day.

M. DE SEGUR termed the speech of Prince NAPOLEON scandalous.

M. DEVIENNE denied that the Senate Commission disapproved of the Senatus Consultum, and said they only disapproved of such a Senatus Consultum as the Prince NAPOLEON desired to have.

After further debate, four articles of the Senatus Consultum were adopted.

M. MAYNE is preparing financial reforms which it is estimated will produce a surplus of 60,000,000 francs. Of this sum 20,000,000 will be applied to the increase of the smaller salaries of Government employes, 20,000,000 to the reduction of the octroi duties of Paris, and 20,000,000 to reduction in the land tax.

The Empress has left Chambery and will arrive in Paris to-morrow.

The Journal Officiel announces that Rear-Admiral LEFEBORE has been appointed to the command of the naval division of the Antilles and North America.

The Presse asserts that Prince NAPOLEON had a conference yesterday morning with the Emperor, at which the latter expressed approval of the liberal ideas of the Prince.

SPAIN.

The Spanish Journals Despondent About Cuba—They Demand More Information.

MADRID, Sept. 2.—The journals here are despondent about Cuba, and demand fuller official information of the state of affairs in the island.

CUBA.

The Reported Negotiations with Spain—What Minister Sickles Demands—The Aim of the Volunteers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—A private letter dated Madrid, from an entirely responsible source, repeats that Minister SICKLES has offered the United States as a mediator between Spain and the Cubans, the propositions being, as stated in the American newspapers, that slavery be abolished in the island; the Cubans to pay Spain for the public buildings, fortifications, &c.; and it is equally true that while Spain does not reject the mediation, there are serious obstacles in the way of accommodation. The impression among many of the Spanish statesmen is, however, that the island will eventually pass from the possession and control of that Power. It is stated that the preliminary demanded by Spain is, that the Cubans shall lay down their arms—a condition with which, it is ascertained, they will not comply, if for no other reason than that they have no guarantee of protection in such an event from the Spanish volunteers, who, according to report, aim at the absolute control of the island, and have a secret organization to that end.

An Engagement near Contramaestre River—Reported Surrender of Insurgents—An Incendiary Proclamation.

HAVANA, Sept. 2.—Colonel CANIZAL'S forces have had an engagement with the insurgents near Contramaestre River, and killed sixteen of them.

Eighty men, twenty of them armed, presented themselves before Colonel CANIZAL, and asked for pardon and protection.

An incendiary proclamation was yesterday posted throughout the City of Havana. It is reported to be the work of insurgent sympathizers.

Cuban Volunteers at Fort Gaines, Ga.—Arrival of the United States Deputy Marshal—General Terry Asked for Troops—Revenue Cutters to Cruise the Coast.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 2.—A large party of men, enlisted for the Cuban army, are at Fort Gaines, Ga. United States Deputy Marshal COX arrived there to-day, and telegraphs that the citizens are unable to cope with them, and asks for troops. A dispatch has been forwarded to General TERRY, asking for a company of troops to be sent to the fort by special train to-night. District-Attorney MILLEDGE telegraphed in return to the effect that he will be here in the morning, and also the United States Marshal from Savannah. Revenue cutters have been ordered to cruise off the coast to intercept the filibusters, if they should succeed in getting away. Great excitement prevails here, as many who joined the expedition are men under age. The United States Commissioner's Office has been crowded all day with anxious parents, to hear if the authorities have succeeded in stopping the party. The party had a special boat chartered to take them down the River Apalachicola, and are reported as being under the command of Major BRIDGEFORD, formerly of General LEE'S staff.

CANADA.

Prince Arthur's Movements—Honors Received at Hopewell—The Ship Laborers' Strike at Quebec—A Man Nearly Beaten to Death.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 2.—Prince ARTHUR, with Colonel ELPHINSTONE and Lieutenant PICKARD, left Richmond by a special train at 6:30 o'clock. Salutes were fired at several stations along the route. The party reached Hopewell at 10:20, where an address was presented to the Prince, who made a verbal reply. The Prince then took a carriage and rode some distance. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested. The Prince will embark in the gunboat Dart, at Pictou, for Shediac on Monday.

The city, through Mayor TOBIN, presented a farewell address to Admiral RODNEY MUNDY this afternoon.

QUEBEC, Canada, Sept. 2.—The ship laborers' strike continues. Not a vessel in port is being worked upon, and the lower portion of the town wears the aspect of Sunday. Yesterday the rioters attacked an inoffensive young man on Peter-street and almost beat him to death before he was rescued. The city and water Police, from Montreal, paraded the town, but failed to make any arrests. In the afternoon the laborers commenced to mass at the foot of Mountain Hill and a serious disturbance appeared imminent. The troops were again called out, but the rioters finally dispersed in small bodies.

Difficulty in Boston—A Steamer Held by a Deputy Sheriff Seized by Her Captain—The Officer Overpowered—The Vessel Retaken, and Her Crew Imprisoned.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—A serious difficulty occurred here to-day on board the steamer Escort, which plies between this port and Gloucester, but which at the time lay at Lewis Wharf. Deputy Sheriff DEARBORN had gone aboard, with a keeper, to take possession of the steamer on a writ of attachment.

Captain DAVIDSON, of the steamer, resisted the attempted detention of his boat, and with the crew overpowered the officers. He ran the trip to Gloucester with the captives on board; but on the return of the steamer a large posse of officers, under Sheriff CLARKE, were at the wharf, and arrested the Captain and the four others who had made violent resistance to the Sheriff's deputy. They were lodged in jail. The affair produces much excitement.

The Lumber Trade—Meeting of Mill Owners in Williamsport, Penn.—The Business in Canada.

LOCK HAVEN, Penn., Sept. 2.—A meeting of the mill owners and others interested in the lumber trade, was held at Williamsport yesterday. Nearly every firm in the trade was represented; and an entire unanimity in the object of the meeting prevailed. It was resolved that but one-half of the usual stock of logs be cut and manufactured on the west branch for 1870. A committee was appointed to make arrangements to have the object of this resolution carried fully into effect.

OTTAWA, Canada, Sept. 2.—There is great activity in the sawed lumber trade in this city. About 40,000,000 of feet are now piled at the mills here. In addition to this, about 40,000,000 of feet have been shipped from Ottawa to the States this season, commencing in May and ending on the 31st of August.

The Schuyler Towing Company—Application for a Dissolution and the Appointment of a Receiver—Decision Reserved.

ALBANY, Sept. 2.—Application has been made to Judge HOGEBOOM for a dissolution of the Schuyler Towing Company and the appointment of a receiver by SAMUEL ROBINSON. The allegations in the complaint are: that the funds are misappropriated by means of fraudulent contracts for coal, repairs, and the purchase of steamers and material in general; that, during the eleven years prior to the death of Mr. THOMAS SCHUYLER, the stockbrokers received dividends amounting in the aggregate to $504,000, and that since Mr. SAMUEL SCHUYLER came into possession there have been no dividends at all. The counter affidavits deny the allegations of fraud. A majority of the holders of the stock and all the Directors sustain the course of Mr. SCHUYLER. The stock of the Company consists of 1,000 shares of a par value of $100, but the real value of the entire stock is said to be full $250,000. Of the stock, 701 shares are actively enlisted on behalf of Mr. SCHUYLER. Judge HOGEBOOM reserved his decision.

POLITICAL.

THE TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

Continuation of its Proceedings—Letter from Hon. Edward C. Delavan—The Platform—It Proposes a Third Party—A Long Discussion—The Platform Adopted.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The National Temperance Convention reassembled this morning, at 9 o'clock.

Judge BLACK, President of the Convention, led in prayer. He then read an extract from an editorial in the Chicago Tribune, as follows:

"As to the effort to prevent all men by law from drinking spirituous liquors, nineteen-twentieths of the American people will, in our judgment, at all times oppose it. Such a law rests on force. It is good for nothing until backed by the Police, the Sheriff's posse, the Constable's club, the army and the navy."

The Judge then said that the idea that they intended to employ force to accomplish their work was ridiculous; they worked only by moral suasion.

JOHN STEARNS, of New-York, then read a letter from Hon. EDWARD C. DELAVAN. In his letter he says: "I have been asked what my views are with regard to the use of the ballot. I would premise by saying that I have always been in favor of employing moral suasion to induce as many as possible to abandon the use and sale of intoxicating liquors as a drink, and moral suasion also to convince the voter, whatever his party, that it is his duty to his God, his family and his country to use his ballot to destroy the license system and prohibition. With my present views I am opposed to the policy of a separate party, which would exhaust itself in trying to attain that end; but I would appeal to the total abstainers and prohibitionists within the respective political circles to make use of their utmost influence to bring about the desired result; for by doing this they do not in any degree interfere with political parties, or act inconsistently, but, in my judgment, take a great religious question out of partisan strife."

Mr. DELAVAN quotes an article from the New-York Examiner, which takes the ground that the evils of intemperance cannot be legislated out of existence unless under the legislation there lies a vast controlling moral sentiment bearing it up and giving it force, and says he thinks there is much practical wisdom in these remarks. My own mind has some time been tending in the same direction.

Mr. RANSOM, of New-Jersey, read the platform, as follows:

Whereas, Protection and allegiance are reciprocal duties, and every citizen who yields obedience to the just commands of his government is entitled to the full, complete and perfect protection of that government in the enjoyment of personal security, personal liberty and private property; and

Whereas, The traffic in intoxicating drinks greatly impairs the personal security and personal liberty of the large masses of citizens, and renders private property insecure; and

Whereas, The existing parties are hopelessly unwilling to adopt an adequate policy on this question: Therefore, we, in National Convention assembled, as citizens of this free Republic, sharing in the duties and responsibilities of its government, in the discharge of a solemn duty we owe to our country and race, unite in the following declaration of principles:

First—That while we acknowledge the pure patriotism and profound statesmanship of those patriots who laid broad and deep the foundations of this Government, securing at once the rights of the States severally and their inseparable union by the Federal Constitution, we would not merely garnish the sepulchres of our Republican fathers, but we do hereby renew our solemn pledges of fealty to the imperishable principles of civil and religious liberty embodied in the Declaration of American Independence and our Federal Constitution.

Second—That traffic in intoxicating beverages is a dishonor to Christian civilization, inimical to the best interests of society, a political source of unequaled enormity, subversive of the ordinary objects of the Government, not capable of being regulated or restrained by any system of license whatever, but imperatively demanding for its suppression effective legal prohibition, both by State and National Legislatures.

Third—That, in view of this, and inasmuch as the existing political parties either oppose or ignore this great and paramount question, and absolutely refuse to do anything toward the suppression of the rum traffic, which is robbing the nation of its brightest intellects, destroying its natural prosperity and undermining its very foundations, we are driven by an imperative sense of duty to sever our connection with these political parties, and to organize ourselves into a "National Anti-Dramshop Party," having for its primary object the entire suppression of the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

Fourth—While we adopt the name of "Anti-Dramshop Party," as expressive of our primary object, and while we denounce all repudiation of the public debt, and pledge fidelity to the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution, we deem it inexpedient to give prominence to other political issues.

Fifth—That a Central Executive Committee of one from each State and Territory and the District of Columbia be appointed by the Chair, whose duty it shall be to take such action as in their judgment will best promote the interests of the party.

The third plank of the platform called out a vigorous discussion.

Chaplain LOZIER was opposed to it entirely. He was heart and soul a temperance man, but was opposed to giving up his political principles because he was a temperance man.

Mr. MONTGOMERY, of Indiana, was for a third party. Only those opposed it who had axes to grind.

Dr. JEWETT, of Tennessee, had fought in the Republican ranks from the beginning. He owed everything to that party. In Massachusetts the Whig Party passed the Prohibition law, and the same party did the same thing in Connecticut and Maine. In Connecticut they fought the temperance fight, and went down with the cause. In the last Convention in Maine the Republican Party incorporated a temperance plank in their platform and opposed the new party project.

Mr. RUSSELL, of Michigan, answered Mr. JEWETT, denying that which Mr. JEWETT had credited the Republican Party with. He undertook to prove that the Republican Party had done nothing for the temperance cause.

Mr. JEWETT—"Now name one Democratic paper that has ever come out in its favor?"

Dr. WM. ROSS, of Illinois, said he could name one—"Brick" POMEROY'S. "He has published article after article against intemperance. Yes, and he lives up to it, too."

Mr. RUSSELL went on with an eulogium of the Democratic Party, closing his remarks by prophesying success to the Temperance Party at last.

Mrs. BALLOU, of Minnesota, did not think she had a right to speak on the rostrum. She was a citizen, but she was full of the subject to overflowing. How should they judge of the political parties but by their deeds? Should they beg them to maintain temperance? Must they cry for mercy? She recited an anecdote of a poor starving boy, who was asked why he did not beg, and answered: "Do not my ragged clothes beg, my thin cheeks beg, and my empty stomach beg?" Do not the women whose homes are desolate beg?—whose ill treatment at the hands of men ruined by the dram shop is so plain that it plainly begs? She thought they were now ready for a new party. If there was any good in the Republican or Democratic Parties, let them shake hands with the new party and mingle with them. This party was their party—the true humane party; it needed temperance women, and must thereby help the women. If men rule nations, women rule men; if men create principalities or powers, women are the creators of men.

Mr. LEONARD said he was from Egypt. It was the wish of all Egyptians and Christians that a third party be established. He said the Republican platform meant abolition and Post Offices, while the Democrat platforms meant nigger and whisky.

Mr. TILTON, of Wisconsin, said it was not time for the temperance men to sever political ties and form a party with this one plank for a platform. He had grave doubts about the success of the movement. Is there any reasonable prospect that can draw enough people from the Republican Party to overcome the remainder and the Democratic Party?

[A VOICE—I will give a hundred dollars a dozen for all the Democrats who will leave their party for this.]

Temperance is not the only question now in this country. There are important questions in which temperance men are interested, and men are not going to leave these important issues and cleave to and fight for one idea, now that the political parties have their machinery all ready, their lines laid, and all ready to work. Give the parties to understand that temperance men will not support whisky men, and after a defeat or two they would be careful whom they nominate against.

Rev. Mr. BOLCH, of Illinois, said Mr. TILTON saw lions in the way. He had his doubts, but "he that doubteth is damned," as the party would be if it hesitated. There was the old and rotten Democratic Party in the way, and the rocking Republican Party in the way; but with the help of God they would put them out of the way. He had been asked if the temperance men were going to split up the Republican Party, if that party favored whisky. They would split it up and split it down.

A resolution was here introduced, and passed by a unanimous vote, that the name of the party be "The National Temperance Party."

Rev. Dr. HATFIELD, of Chicago, said it was painful to him to differ from men of sense. He did not believe in the formation of a new party. What they wanted was a conviction grown into the mind that the liquor business is wrong, and until that was done distinct parties are bogwood stubble. Experience shows that where distinct temperance questions were made the issue, they met with defeat. The temperance men of Massachusetts say if they can ward off the folly of a third party and make the Republicans believe that they would desert the party if they did not do right, they would get what they wanted. The party that hopes for the organization of a third party is the one that was trying to break up the Union and desired to keep up slavery. It is what they want.

Considerable sparring followed between Dr. HATFIELD and R. J. HAMMOND, which was rather sharp in its character. Mr. HAMMOND was hissed down, and the Convention adjourned until 2 o'clock.

On reassembling at 2 o'clock the discussion of the third plank was resumed.

C. H. FARRILL, of Illinois, said the Republican and Democratic Parties were dead. New issues were wanted. It was useless to ask either of the parties for assistance.

Rev. Mr. DIXON, of Illinois, was for a new party.

The third resolution, as reported by the Committee, was then adopted with but one dissenting voice.

Mr. FRENCH, of Massachusetts, offered a resolution that temperance men in each State and Territory will not be committed by any action of this Convention to organize distinct political parties in their respective localities until, in their judgment, the interests of the temperance cause be better promoted thereby.

Mr. BLOSS, of Illinois, offered a substitute to the fourth resolution, that having declared that all persons have a right to be protected in person and property against the liquor traffic, they hold that the means to secure that protection is equally right, therefore suffrage should be impartial, without regard to nationality, color or sex.

The amendment, after debate, was rejected, and the resolution adopted.

The fifth resolution was passed unanimously.

The Secretary offered the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That while we recognize the good providence of Almighty God in supervising the interests of this nation from its establishment to the present time, we would not in organizing our party for the legal prohibition of liquor traffic, forget that our reliance for ultimate success must be upon the same omnipotent arm.

The preamble was adopted and the whole platform then adopted by a rising vote with three cheers and a tiger. The doxology was then sung.

Hon. GERRITT SMITH presented and read a long address which he had prepared. A half-dozen or more motions were made to strike out of Mr. SMITH'S address certain expressions which were deemed offensive or not in good taste. The address was finally recommitted to the Committee for the purpose of condensing it.

The Convention then adjourned until 7:30 P. M.

At the evening session of the National Temperance Convention the address presented by GERRITT SMITH, in the afternoon, and referred back to him, was recalled and adopted. This was followed by addresses from various persons, after which the Convention adjourned sine die.

CALIFORNIA.

The State Election—A Light Vote—San Francisco Democratic—Returns from the Interior Meagre—The Legislature Uncertain.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Notwithstanding that business has been generally suspended in the city to-day, the vote is unusually light. Both the Independents and the Democrats claim the victory. The reports from the interior are favorable to the Democrats.

FRANK MCCOPPIN, Democrat, is elected Mayor by about 1,000 majority. A portion of the independent municipal ticket is elected.

The returns from the interior of the State are meagre, but the indications are that the Democrats have secured a majority in the next Legislature.

In San Francisco the day was as quiet as a Sunday, and there was but little interest manifested in the election.

The Latest Returns—A Democratic Legislature.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2—Evening.—The Democratic local tickets throughout the State are generally elected by decided Democratic majorities. The next Legislature will render an emphatic verdict against the Fifteenth Amendment. San Francisco returns a full Democratic legislative delegation. The vote of the city was light. About 36,000 names were on the register, and less than 22,000 votes were polled. The count of the straight tickets for Mayor last night gave MCCOPPIN, Democratic, nearly 1,400 majority. But the account of the scratched tickets at eight o'clock this evening shows that SELBY, Independent, is about 125 ahead, with a prospect of an increased majority.

WISCONSIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The Republican State Convention of Wisconsin yesterday made the following nominations: For Governor, LUCIUS FAIRCHILD, the present incumbent; Lieutenant-Governor, T. C. POUND; Secretary of State, E. A. SPENCER; State Treasurer, HENRY BOOTH. The resolutions adopted by the Convention declare the inalienable right of all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; in favor of the Fifteenth Amendment; the liberty of speech and of the Press; free ballots to all classes; the maintenance inviolate of the national faith as pledged to its creditors; such an adjustment of the burden of taxation by revisions and modifications, from time to time, of the tariff and other revenue laws as will cause them to fall equitably upon all classes of the people; and retrenchment and economy in the administration of the National Government.

Failure of an Illinois Insurance Company—A New Tunnel in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 2.—The Farmers and Merchants' Insurance Company of Quincy, Ill., has failed with more liabilities than assets.

The Board of Public Works of this city has decided to prepare the way for another tunnel under the lake, to be sixty feet beneath the surface, running under the main and south branches of the river, and under the whole city from the water works on the north side to about Twenty-second-street on the west side. The work will occupy about three years to complete it and cost about a million of dollars.

Territorial Officers of Montana Removed by the Governor—Stage-Coach Robbery.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—A Virginia City, Montana, dispatch says: "The Territorial Auditor and Treasurer, elected at the late election, have been removed by the Governor, who has filled their places by appointment. The reason for the removal was the fraudulent returns of Madison County, and the throwing out of Choteau County on account of the informality of the official count of votes yesterday. Virginia City was still declared the capital."

The stage which left Helena last night was robbed of several thousand dollars by road agents, near Malad. Parties are now in pursuit.

Two Missouri Insurance Companies Alleged to be Insolvent—Injunctions Procured.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—WYLLIS KING, Superintendent of the Insurance Department of this State, has procured injunctions against the Hannibal Savings and Insurance Company, and the Pacific Mutual of this city, on the ground of their insolvency.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP RHEIN.

The Cunard steamship Rhein, from Bremen Aug. 21, and Southampton Aug. 24, reached this port early this morning. Her advices are one day later.

M. ROCHEFORT, the leader of the "Irreconcilables," as he is now styled, writes as follows with regard to the late amnesty:

"To-day my friends inform me that a sponge has been passed over my past career, and that an august clemency (Clémence, du reste, is the name of my cook) has remitted the various penalties I have incurred during the last year, by dint of economy and good conduct. Who—What is it—What do they want with me? To what penalties do they allude? What amnesty are you talking about? Have I been sentenced? It is not impossible. Have I been amnestied? I know nothing of it. What law Courts and Government decide upon has nothing whatever to do with me, and I have determined to remain quite unconnected with either the one or the other. The only sentence and the only amnesty I can accept are those awarded by the people. It forms the only tribunal and the only power before which it is my good pleasure to bow. I shall only return to France when the people recall me by its vote. I shall only reënter my country in obedience to the imperative mandate which I shall presently solicit from the electors of the First Circumscription. I receive willingly from the people, which I know and love; but it does not suit me to be under an obligation to low persons (gens) whom I have never seen, and who have never been presented to me."

The Rome correspondent of the Morning Post says: "The Pope has granted the Cross of St. Gregory the Great to the French painter, M. EMILE LAFON, for his picture of the Battle of Mentana, which was purchased from that artist by a committee of Catholic ladies in Rome, and presented to His Holiness by them on the occasion of his sacerdotal jubilee, on the 11th of April last. His Holiness has conferred a similar decoration upon M. MAXIMILIAN SEITZ for his remarkable allegorical composition illustrating the centenary of St. Peter—a subject suggested by the Pope himself.

An undertaking highly interesting to archæologists is about to be commenced with the sanction of His Holiness, being the clearance of the ancient monumental façade of the Marcian Aqueduct from the mediæval fortifications and superstructures of the Porta San Lorenzo.

The present Pope's predecessor, GREGORY XVI., authorized a similar operation at the Porta Maggiorie, which resulted in the extrication of the magnificent façade and inscriptions of the Claudian Aqueduct from rude towers and buttresses hastily thrown up in remote and troublous times, and the revelation of an interesting Roman tomb under the rubbish, erected to the memory of the wealthy baker, VERGILIUS EURYACES, and his wife—a monument decorated with portrait statues and bassi-relievi illustrative of the occupation of the defunct.

PIO NONO is delighted at the continued success of the excavations at the Emporium. The marbles already extracted from that ancient wharf are valued at 2,000,000 francs; and as Baron VISCONTI predicts that the depot will be found to extend down the left bank of the Tiber, from the Aventine to the Church of St. Paul extra muros, the supply may be considered as almost inexhaustible. Last week sixteen great masses were got out, one being of rose-colored oriental alabaster of great value, another of pavonazzetto, and several of giallo antico. The Emporium has supplied everything that the restoration of Agrippa's Pantheon required, and the same materials are being employed in the restoration and embellishment of twenty-one churches in Rome. The Pope has also sent presents of marble to various Churches in different parts of Europe, and has promised Archbishop MANNING an assortment of the most precious kinds for the enrichment of the future Roman Catholic Cathedral of London. The Prussian Government has returned thanks for the munificence of his Holiness' gift to the Cathedral of Aix-la-Chapelle. Switzerland will not be forgotten in the dispensation of these long-hidden treasures. Only two columns of African marble of size and importance were hitherto visible in Rome, at the entry of the portico of St. Peter's. The Emporium has furnished fifteen others, of which the largest has been destined to be the commemorative monument of the Council on the Janiculum. Thirteen pieces of the precious murrhæ, for which the ancient Romans paid fabulous prices, have also been discovered. The Belvedere court-yard in the Vatican is now the principal depot of these marble treasures, which are arranged there under the Pope's immediate inspection. Last week his Holiness witnessed the arrival of an enormous block of African, dragged from the Tiber bank to his palace by twenty shaggy black buffaloes.

The Salut Public of Lyons has just published a most extraordinary anecdote, for the truth of which it vouches with great determination. During the sojourn of LOUIS NAPOLEON in America he became very intimate with a family whose real name the Salut Public disguises under the pseudonym of Edwards, derived from the Christian name of its head. The friendship the EDWARDSES felt for the Prince was unvarying, and his feelings toward them when he became Emperor were as constant as they had been when he was an exile. In 1859 Mr. EDWARDS came to France to felicitate his friend on his Italian victories, and was received by the Emperor with much warmth. The interview was long and private; Mr. EDWARDS, however, made no secret of what passed between them, and repeated to several of his friends the following words of the Emperor. The Prince Imperial has only just recovered from a serious illness, and his Majesty, still under the impression of his past fears, said to his old friend, "If I had had the misfortune to lose my son, and all hope for an heir in a direct line were denied me, I should have put into execution an extraordinary project. * * * * I should have given to France the privileges, the liberties, the manners of a Republic. I should have wished to be looked upon as the first citizen of my country, after having given back to it those liberties which political necessity has obliged me to take away for a time; in a word, I should have rendered impossible after my death any other form of Government than that of a republic—the only one which, wisely understood, and applied with energy, can suit France. But I must give up this dream; a father of a family must not burn his son's roof over his head, and I must try and conciliate two elements which now seem utterly inalienable—the Empire and liberty. My heirs shall reign, and France shall only lose a name—the name of republic. She will soon have, I hope, all the liberal institutions that I have so much admired in the New World." * * * Such words as these, at such time, certainly took Mr. EDWARDS by surprise, and created much astonishment and incredulity in the minds of those to whom he communicated them.

PRUSSIA AND AUSTRIA.

Text of Count Beust's Letter to Baron de Thile.

The following is the text of Count DE BEUST'S reply to Baron DE THILE'S dispatch of Aug. 4. It is addressed to Baron DE MUNCH, Austrian Representative at Berlin:

VIENNA, 15th August.

Baron DE WERTHER has left me a copy of the annexed dispatch from his Government. He handed it to me just before the sittings of the Delegation, and, consequently, I asked for a few days' delay before sending the requested written answer to the Prussian Cabinet through you.

But, before doing so, I cannot avoid referring to the previous communication of the Under-Secretary of State, dated the 19th of July, of which, in fact, no copy was left with me, but the text of which we possess, as it has since been published.

When Baron DE WERTHER read the last one to me, I gave immediately such explanations as appeared to me sufficient to obviate the misunderstandings which had arisen, and although I did not hesitate to state that such or such a passage out to be contradicted, I nevertheless renounced giving a written answer, in order not to occasion a useless exchange of dispatches. In fact, no reply would have been made, and for that reason I avow that the publication of the document a few weeks later greatly surprised me. However, as it has taken place, we can only consider that course as a desire to hear the answer which had not been given.

You remember the tenor of the Austrian communication of the 11th July, which has been referred to. It contained no sort of question as to a reclamation.

However, after the numerous discussions produced by the appearance of the Red Book, which was said to be contrary to diplomatic usages, we considered we were permitted, although those argument were only brought forward by the Prussian Press, to call attention to certain facts, which, in our opinion, were in nowise in accordance with the ordinary customs of diplomacy.

Our intention was sufficiently clearly expressed in the sense that we did not wish to arrogate the right of making official observations to the Prussian Cabinet as to its communications with other Governments; but that we only desired, in mentioning facts of that kind, to induce a judgment less severe in future as to the Red Book. In my view, therefore, Baron DE THILE had absolutely no occasion to protest against a criticism and a control.

If, on the other hand, the assertion is made that Prussia is entitled to censure the use made by the Austrian Government of its dispatches, I should be very grateful if any one would justify that reproach in detail, for I am without any point of departure to form an opinion.

Passing now to the dispatch of the 4th inst., I must commence by saying that immediately after having heard it read I did not fail to express to Baron DE WERTHER that, in principle, I could not consent to reply to an interpellation as to words used in the Committee of the Delegations. What is said by the representatives of the Government in the secret deliberations of Parliamentary bodies escapes, I use the expression of the Under-Secretary, the control of foreign Governments. I also remarked to the Prussian Envoy that I was in no doubt as to the answer which, if the case were reversed, Count DE BISMARCK would make to an analogous overture, and that consequently I might be convinced that my reserve on this point would appear so much the less surprising. But, perhaps, the fact will not be inopportunely called to mind that, soon after the nomination of M. DE BISMARCK as President of the Council, an unguarded word used in a Committee of the Chamber obtained publicity, an expression which events have since converted into a reality, and although it was of a nature to cause disquietude to several Governments, no steps were any where taken, as far as I am aware, to demand any representations on the subject to Berlin.

Animated by the sincere desire to avoid anything which might resemble a want of the regard due to the Prussian Government, I have nevertheless promised to send a written answer.

In truth I ought to refuse to enter upon a discussion as to the subject of the deliberations of the Committees, but I will not abstain from expressing my views on the questions raised by the Cabinet of Berlin relative to the articles on this matter which have appeared in the journals, but which, as I have already remarked to Baron DE WERTHER, have no character of authenticity.

If, consequently, the Sub-Secretary of States affirms that no opportunity had hitherto been given to the Prussian Government for replying to the views of the Imperial Cabinet on military treaties concluded with Southern Germany before the signature of the Treaty of Prague, I have to oppose to that assertion my dispatch to Count DE WIMPFFEN of March 28, 1867, reproduced in the Red Book, No. 1, a copy of which I here subjoin. That dispatch was communicated to the knowledge of the Prussian Government, and a report of Count DE WIMPFFEN states that Count DE BISMARCK received it in a most obliging manner, and without raising any objection. The Imperial Government has remained faithful to the views expressed in that document, which were not then contested by any one, and which certainly bore the impress of the most conciliatory sentiments.

It is because we intend to adhere to the same ideas for the future that we feel a desire to avoid any discussion in the question raised in the dispatch of Aug. 4, and to call attention to this point only—namely, that we gave no opinion at that time on she question whether the Peace of Prace prevented the States of the south from concluding treatics with others, but merely adverted to the circumstance that at the time of the signature of the peace we were kept in ignorance of the preliminary conclusion of the treaties in question; so that the Austrian negotiator was deprived of the possibility of asking the Government whether the passage relative to the international independence of the South should be eliminated as devoid of meaning, or whether it ought not to appear in another form so as to have a precise signification.

I have now to speak of the second part of the dispatch. I will not pause to inquire into the approximate correctness of a special communication of the journal, because I confirmed the same to Baron DE WERTHER with a readiness of which, indeed, after this experiment, I may have reason to repent.

But I cannot accord to the Sub-Secretary the right of calling me to account for words attributed to me by the public prints. If, nevertheless, the Prussian Government desires an exchange of dispatches on the subject of advances made on either side, in the last years, to promote a better understanding, we shall willingly accede to that wish; certainly not with the object of increasing the existing irritation, but on the contrary with that of allaying and removing it by a mutual recognition of truth; for we associate ourselves in full sincerity with the regret expressed at the end of the dispatch, namely, that reprehensible efforts should seek to create suspicions and distrust between two nations who desire to maintain pacific and amicable relations.

Lastly, allusion is made to a circumstance to which too great importance seems to be attached.

Count DE WIMPFFEN is absent on leave at this moment; consequently I am not in a position to get complete information in the causes of a prolonged interruption in his personal intercourse with the Federal Chancellor. I will not, however, omit to call attention to the following points. The interview in the Spring of 1866, mentioned in the dispatch of Aug. 4 was followed by a conge of Count DE WIMPFFEN, and this in its turn by an absence of Count DE BISMARCK, which was prolonged to near the end of 1868. A very little after his return—and I allude to that epoch with great reluctance—commenced the well-known attacks of the Press on the Imperial Government, which became so persistent and so violent that I undoubtedly felt called upon to recommend the Austrian Envoy to abstain from seeing the Federal Chancellor unless affairs required an interview. We acted on the principle that a patient silence on the part of our Ambassador did not respond to the dignity of the Imperial Government, and that, on the other hand, a discussion provoked on the questions then occupying the public mind would not lead to any satisfactory solution of the same. The supposition of our having an intention to prolong that reserved attitude is refuted by the relations that have continued with Baron DE WERTHER—as mentioned in the dispatch of Aug. 4—an intercourse which certainly would not have taken place had it not been facilitated, for the Prussian Envoy, by a constantly amicable demeanor on my part. Moreover, Count DE WIMPFFEN will see, in the observations I have just made, an invitation which he will doubtless show an eagerness to entertain.

You will kindly read this communication to the Sub-Secretary of State, and leave a copy of it in his hands. Receive, &c.,

COUNT DE BEUST.

The Story of the Difficulty—The Austrian and Prussian Statements—The Attitude of Hungary.

Correspondence of the London Times.

BERLIN, Saturday, Aug. 21, 1869.

Count BEUST has answered the two Prussian dispatches of July 18 and Aug. 4 in a comprehensive dispatch, dated Aug. 15. It being as interesting to know the result of this profitless encounter as it is difficult to gather it from the wordy and rather perplexing reply of the Austrian Chancellor, I am probably not performing a work of supererogation by placing the various Prussian and Austrian statements in immediate juxtaposition.

Close of Parliament—Movements of the Royal Family—The Bonaparte Centenary—Interesting Facts About the Family and Name—The Empress Eugenie.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Monday, Aug. 16, 1869.

We have been looking for several days past for the publication of the Royal decree which is to close the present Parliament, that of 1867 as it is called; that being the year in which it had its beginning. There are three ways of dissolving the Legislative Body, each of which always requires a formal edict, signed by the Sovereign. First, prorogation, or adjournment; next, a closing of the term, as in the present case; and finally, dissolution and new elections, to which it is highly probable this Parliament will before long come.

LIFE IN FLORENCE.

Here in the capital city, nearly all political life has for the time died out, and there is a lull in political controversy. It is as fashionable here as it is in America, for all who can muster means, to go at this season to the mineral baths or to the sea, and there the heats of the physical as well as the political system are cooled off.

THE ROYAL FAMILY.

The King and Royal Princes are in the North, and it is now decided that the accouchement of the Princess MARGARETTE is to take place at Naples instead of Florence. It is felt to be of some consequence to the Kingdom of Italy that the Neapolitans should have their share of whatever honors may come from an intimate association with the King's family, in order to soothe their susceptibilities, kept alive ever since Naples lost the glitter of its own Royal Court. So, if a male child should be born, the City of of Naples has the promise of being the birthplace of the future King of Italy. One is at least called upon to acknowledge that the inhabitants of that city have behaved themselves much better for the past eight years than anybody hoped—a fact upon which greater emphasis should be laid, when it is remembered how bad was their former political education.

ANNIVERSARY OF BONAPARTE'S BIRTH.

Yesterday was the festa of the Assumption of the Virgin, and the anniversary of the birth of NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. Just one hundred years ago a lady of respectable family at Ajaccio, in the island of Corsica, was kneeling at her devotions in one of the churches when she was seized with the pains of child-birth. She went home and was delivered of an infant, which was baptized with the name of NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. Everybody knows the rest of the story; indeed, one of the most eventful and interesting among historical records. Little did those think who stood over the couch of a smiling infant that a man was born who was to set Europe on fire and found a dynasty with the slaughter of two millions of human beings. Similar things had before occurred in history; but the actor sends forward no notice of the instrument of blessing or chastisement which in the hands of God he is destined to be. The festa of the Assumption is made of little account here, but all who have seen it, know what a pretty spectacle the French have made of the celebration of the 15th of August in this capital city. A little while back it was thought that this first centenary would be the occasion for paying extraordinary honors to the memory of the deified CÆSAR. Something was said about the intention of the whole family of the BONAPARTE blood to meet in the little town of Ajaccio, which an accident has given a fame in all the world quite out of proportion to any other claim which it has to notice. But no special mark of attention has been extended to town or time, and we are led to conclude that the BONAPARTES are not very proud of the humble place which was the cradle of the Imperial race. Indeed, if we examine pretty closely, we shall find that it was only by a slender chance that the greatest of the so-called Frenchmen was not born an Italian subject, instead of one of la grande nation, as it was only a month before the birth of the BONAPARTE that the island of Corsica was wholly transferred from Italian to French control. The population is still Italian in language and habits, and there are some enthusiasts among the patriots of this country who look forward to the time when the ancient possession shall be restored to its original ownership. But that time is remote, and it will only arrive when Italy is strong enough to make good her claim to Malta, Istria, Dalmatia, Ticino and the Lower Tyrol. The Italians feel a pride in the BONAPARTES—a pride which they are reluctant to confess, but not unmingled with jealousy; for from the beginning they have seen them using their talents for the glory of another nation. But in a controversy you will find them ready to maintain that the credit of having produced the stock belongs to Italy.

THE BONAPARTE FAMILY.

When LOUIS NAPOLEON came into power after trampling upon the Republic, an effort was made by the Imperialists to prove for the BONAPARTES a remote and illustrious origin. Records here in Tuscany were ransacked, and a sounding story was made out. But the simple truth, which every intelligent person here knows, is, that the ancestors of the family were persons of position simply respectable—which is saying much—such as lawyers, writers of books, and canons of churches. If the BONAPARTES have made a name in the world, they owe it to talents which nature has given them, and not to the factitious circumstances of a long line of ancestors.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME "BONAPARTE."

The BONAPARTE family can be traced back to Florence in the time of the Guelf and Ghibelline wars. In those rude times many of the common people had no family names, but one or another was known as John of the Stone, or Peter of the Iron Hand, and so on through a varied list. The humble ancestors of these now French heroes in the struggle between Papacy and the Empire took the side of the former, and received the name of BUONAPARTE, or, as we say in English, Goodpart. This continued to be the orthography until the first NAPOLEON dropped the u in writing the name, and it is still correct, according to the somewhat flexible Italian analogy.

THE FRENCH EMPRESS.

The Empress, it is said, intends in a few days to set foot upon the island of Corsica on her way to the East, thus looking into the cradle of the Imperial stock. The Empress is made a convenience of for many occasions, and she does her part with grace and address. Many a trained diplomat would accomplish less. Although EUGENIE is too warm a friend of the Pope to please the Italians, yet they would be glad if, crossing their territory, she would give them an opportunity to gratify their curiosity and exhibit their admiration for puce and good sympathies preserved amid the temptations of high places.

ANGELICO.

Movements of Mr. George Peabody.

From the Philadelphia Press, Sept. 2.

Mr. PEABODY reached Philadelphia on Tuesday evening from Baltimore, in company with his nephew, and drove to the residence of his friend, CHARLES MACALESTER, Esq., No. 1,016 Spruce-street, where he remained until yesterday at 2 o'clock P. M., when he took the boat for Torresdale, intending to spend the evening there at that gentleman's country seat. This morning at 11 o'clock he will leave Torresdale in the special train provided for him, and go direct to Georgetown, Mass., where his sister resides. Mr. PEABODY is not as stout as he was a year ago, but his general health seems to have been improved by his sojourn at the White Sulphur Springs.

PENDLETON.

His Political Fallacies and Heresies—Speech of Lieutenant-Governor Lee, of Ohio.

Lieutenant-Governor J. C. LEE, of Ohio, delivered an able address before a Republican mass meeting, in Defiance, on the 27th ult. From a very full report of his speech published in the Cincinnati Gazette, we quote the following:

PENDLETON AND THE REBELLION.

Under very peculiar and trying circumstances Congress met on the first Monday in September, 1861. JAMES BUCHANAN, a Democrat President, was in the chair. There was a majority of the Republican Party in the House, and a majority of Democrats in the Senate. The annual message of the President was looked to with very great interest, as to its reading upon the subject of the impending rebellion. In that message Mr. BUCHANAN announced that, while opposed to, and believing wrong the secession then afoot, he could find in the Constitution no power authorizing him, as President of the General Government, to use any force to prevent secession. He said it would not be possible to coerce a State—in short, that the rebellion could not be met and put down by force of arms, and as a corollary necessarily to that, that dissolution of the Union was easy; that States could come and go at pleasure; that the Union was but a rope of sand. Had BUCHANAN stood alone in this of all the Democrats in the North, I cannot believe that secession could have been successful; but he was not alone. Even in the Congress of the United States he met concurrence and aid, and among those who concurred with him was the gentleman who is now the candidate for the Governorship of Ohio, on the Democratic ticket. Mr. PENDLETON was then representing the First District of Ohio in that Congress, and heartily concurred in the doctrine announced by Mr. BUCHANAN. With him were very many others, leaders in the Democratic Party. From Mr. PENDLETON and others we received the assurance that in this work of rebellion was opened, the people of the North would not be able to join forces to prevent it; that secession would be established, and a Southern Confederacy erected within the limits of the Southern States, and that it could be accomplished without the shedding of blood. Not only did they announce this doctrine, but they inveighed constantly against the theories and philosophies of the Republican Party, that slavery should be met and restricted in its efforts to overspread the entire territory of the country, so that more than merely the cold dogma of the want of power to prevent secession, and the right of the States to secede, was asserted. There were expressions of hearty sympathy in the purposes and groundwork of secession; a hearty concurrence in the stated grievances of the people of the South, and in the opinion that we were inferior in force, and could not cope with the people of the South. The Southern people as a body relied upon these assurances from the leaders of the Democratic Party in the North, and I say here, without fear of successful contradiction, that had BUCHANAN declared the nation's right to prevent secession and enforce obedience to the Federal law, and had GEORGE H. PENDLETON, with others equally distinguished, joined in it, the attempt to secede would have been but an attempt, rebellion would not have been inaugurated, and we should have been saved the flood of slaughter and expenditure of treasure which we have experienced. In addition, there was the Democratic party on my own statement of it, but shall give you specimens of the solemn official declarations of Mr. PENDLETON himself while thus in Congress. There was a decided attempt to make PENDLETON a candidate at the Columbus Convention in spite of his protestations against it, evincing very squarely that he was the chosen standard-bearer of the party. He has been and now is the idol of the party in Ohio; and if there be a man whose public life has been more thoroughly evincive of the spirit of the party than any other, that man is GEORGE H. PENDLETON. And do I assume too much when I claim that he is the favorite of that party, not so much by reason of his ability, or on account of his great and long service in the State, but because of the policy which he has advocated, the public position he has held, the claim he has made in his public life, in behalf of the people of the South, and of the rebellion they inaugurated? With his private life I have no fault to find, and I do not know that any one could, but I wish to look a little into his public life, and see why it is the Democratic Party is now especially admiring him. You will remember the stormy session of Congress begun in December of 1860, and that then measures were matured for this secession — Senators leaving, Representatives leaving and taking the movement in their respective States. Mr. PENDLETON was looking on, and he saw seven States, one after another, retire from the General Government, and other States progressing in the work of dissolution. He stood there in his place, and arose as the leader of his party on the floor, with long experience, for he was a member of the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Congresses, all in succession, with previous legislative experience in his State—arose there and gave clear and distinct utterance to his own, and the opinions of others of his party united with him. What is Mr. PENDLETON found saying in January of 1861 the second month of this secession, BUCHANAN yet in the chair? We find Mr. PENDLETON saying:

"Sir, the whole scheme of coercion is impracticable; it is contrary to the genius and spirit of the Constitution."

It is declaring that the Constitution did not clothe the General Government with power to preserve the life of that Government; declaring that any State could withdraw, and that coercion was, in fact, not only violative of the Constitution, but was in and of itself utterly impracticable. In the same speech he says:

"My voice to-day is for conciliation; my voice is for compromise; and it is but the echo of the voice of my constituents. I beg you, gentlemen, who with me represent the Northwest; you who with me represent the State of Ohio; you who with me dwell in the City of Cincinnati—I beg you, gentlemen, to hear that voice. If you will not, if you find conciliation impossible; if your differences are so great that you cannot or will not reconcile them—then, gentlemen, let the seceding States depart in peace; let them establish their government and empire, and work out their destiny according to the wisdom which God has given them."

I imagine that when the clamor was noisiest, in the last Convention, to nominate GEORGE H. PENDLETON, those who made that clamor were animated by the same feeling which animated GEORGE H. PENDLETON when he uttered those words. But he goes on further:

"If these Southern States cannot be conciliated, and if you, gentlemen, (addressing the House,) cannot find it in your hearts to grant their demands, if they must leave the family mansion, I would signalize their departure by tokens of love. I would bid them farewell so tenderly that no feeling forever be touched by the recollection of it, and if, in the vicissitudes of their separate existence, they should desire to come together with us again, in one common government, there should be no pride to be humiliated; there should be no wound inflicted from my hand to be healed. They should come and be welcomed to the place they now occupy."

By their hearty indorsement of Mr. PENDLETON'S nomination, the Democratic Party of 1869 goes back and reasserts those same sentiments, and Mr. PENDLETON is the fittest representative of them. That is not all; he goes further; he administers to those who are determined to insist upon the unity of the Government a threat, and tells them of the dire consequences to follow. He tells them that if there was a persistence in the attempt to coerce, there would be a degree of opposition in the South that never could be conquered; but I will give his own language. It is more conclusive than anything I could say:

"Gentlemen, to-day you must make your choice. To-day lay aside all thoughts of war and cultivate the arts of peace. To-day determine upon a course of conciliation and compromise. If you do not—if you insist upon drawing the sword and dipping it in your brothers' blood, if you insist upon this unnatural and unholy war—prepare to wage it to the last extremity, for I warn you that every wound that you inflict upon the Southern people, every defeat to which you subject them, every degradation which you may have the power to make them endure, will rankle in their breasts until they wash out the last stain in your blood and mine, or, it may be, in that of our children."

I submit whether that was not a most hearty indorsement of rebellion. Was it not saying to these rebels "Go on, I bid you God speed; heed not the claim in the North against your effort; go ahead; I know you have the spirit, the courage, the endurance, and by and by you will compel us of the North to admit that fact."

This, in 1861, when the Confederacy of the South was about being formed. But, although coercion was determined upon and armies were marshaled, and the shock of arms was heard on every side, Mr. PENDLETON did not change his sympathy with the rebellion. He kept it consistently upon all sides and at all times until the struggle was ended.

In perfect consistency with his theory, as a member of that Congress, he fought steadily against every measure to raise men to fill up the army; he fought steadily against every measure to raise means with which to defray the expenses of the war. You know that it was necessary to have ready money in much greater abundance than the ordinary resources of revenue would supply; and to that end it was necessary that there should be special legislation. One of those plans was to issue what we now know as "greenbacks," to drive out of existence the currency coming from other banks, and to furnish the United States Treasury note in place of it, making it, as was necessary, a legal tender; otherwise it could not answer the place of currency. Mr. PENDLETON was busy, at all times, in the work of obstructing the enactment of that law. When the Congress of the United States, also, was endeavoring to raise means by the negotiation of bonds, Mr. PENDLETON was opposed; he steadily resisted the passage of the law providing for the issuing of those bonds. I have before me the list of the various votes by him given upon these different subjects, while a member of Congress, until the 4th of March, 1865. He gave some very excellent reasons, to him, I suppose, for his actions upon these various questions, and to be consistent, it was necessary that he should oppose all of these various measures to put down rebellion. I cannot at this time stop to enumerate the votes upon these various measures, but I will say that in them he was entirely and uniformly consistent. At no time, from the beginning to the end, did he falter in his persistent devotion to the cause of secession and of rebellion.

During the year 1863, when Mr. VALLANDIGHAM was the candidate for Governor, Mr. PENDLETON supported him as against JOHN BROUGH. You remember the position VALLANDIGHAM occupied. It was that we should withdraw our army, recall our navy; that we should, in effect, desert all the ground gained by the progress of the war, and trust solely to the results of compromise and conciliation. In that Mr. PENDLETON most heartily concurred. Every word he then spoke was wafted southward, and gave encouragement and heart to the rebellion. In 1864, being yet a member of Congress, he was nominated as Vice-President on the Democratic ticket, in that platform, you will remember, was found the famous resolution which declared that "after four years of failure by war to restore the Union the Democratic Party demanded that there be a resort to the arts of peace to procure that result." General MCCLELLAN had been nominated, not because of his representative character, or as an exponent of the opinions of the Democratic Party, but because it was believed that he would take the votes of the people to a much larger extent than any other member of the party; and to conciliate those of the party who were opposed to the war and any man who had been in it, PENDLETON was nominated as the ablest representative of the anti-war sentiment. In that also was he consistent from the beginning to the end. Do we find any change in 1866? No, fellow-citizens. After all his vaticinations of disaster had proven failures, and the war had been triumphantly closed, and the work of reconstruction was upon our hands, how do you find Mr. PENDLETON? Did he join heartily in reuniting the broken elements of the North and South? No. He, on the other hand, threw in whatever of obstructions he could to prevent reunion. As I said before, we can take but a glance at some of the things said by Mr. PENDLETON. I refer you now to his speech of Aug. 27, 1866, at Edinburg, Ind., wherein he said:

"When I went in honor of addressing the people of Indiana, it was in the midst of an exciting political contest, forced upon us in its bitterness by the arrogance, the intolerance, the superciliousness of our opponents, and we were in the midst of a great military contest of which the occasion, and, perhaps, I might say the pretext was the secession of the Southern States, and their determined purpose to withdraw themselves by force of arms from the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. * * Some one asks if I would have these insurgents and rebels represented in Congress, I would unquestionably, immediately. I will tell you another thing. Much as I hate this system of government, which now stands in such a dangerous attitude, with ten States debarred the right of representation, on the verge of revolution and despotism; much as I deplore it, I hope to God the Southern States will have the courage to stand out forever rather than submit to that thing."

Is this not enough, fellow-citizens, to show you that from the inception of this rebellion until in the year 1866, Mr. PENDLETON steadily and consistently opposed, in every way that he could, the conquering of the rebellion, and the return of the conquered rebels to their places in the Union?

THE NATIONAL DEBT.

In 1867 we still find him perfectly consistent with his former course. No longer, now, could rebellion be aided; no longer did it seem that reconstruction could be prevented, but, out of the war had grown an unnatural condition of our finances—not that it could well have been otherwise with the opposition we had in the North; but such was the volume of our debt, such the amount of interest we were compelled to pay annually, that it was a fit subject to turn the attention of the people to, and, if possible, to excite their discontent. The amount of the debt was very much augmented in his statements—far beyond what it really was; and showing, as he did, this vast volume of debt, he then proposed that the debt which had been incurred in suppressing the rebellion, in conquering his friends, in overturning his prophecies, should now be used as an instrument to destroy, if possible, the friendly relation of the Government, and overturn the party which, in defiance of him and his cohorts, had saved the Union. What did he propose? Why, he proposes to the people, the public bank system, which seemed to be necessarily a production of the emergencies of the hour, should be done away with, and in lieu of it we should have Government or Treasury notes. Let me remind you that while he could do harm to the cause of the Union by abusing the issue of the legal-tenders, he did it, but when it was too late to prevent the preservation of the Union by that means, he turns around, and now, having a like purpose, namely, the destruction of the credit of the nation, and at last, if possible, make disaster universal throughout the land, by reason of the efforts to crush the rebellion, he announces himself as not only in favor of such of the Treasury or legal-tender notes as are out, but in favor of a much larger issue of them for purposes to be hereafter named. By many of his friends, and by him not denied, it was urged that the whole national debt could be speedily paid by simply issuing enough greenbacks to equal in number the number of dollars represented by the national bonds. Although we have, and had then, an aggregate volume of about seven hundred millions believed to be sufficient for the healthful working of the finances of the country, yet PENDLETON proposed in 1867 to issue greenbacks enough to take up the five hundred thousand bonds, and then so to reduce the volume; he proposed, in lieu of the currency issued by the national banks, to issue legal-tender notes, thus not only increasing the volume of the currency, but also proposed to add, as I before stated, five hundred thousand more to it, so that, instead of having seven hundred millions of dollars, it would have been one billion two hundred millions. At that time our currency was far below par, and if its volume had been increased, it must have many times more have receded from par value than it then stood.

THE NATIONAL BANKS—LEGAL TENDERS.

I said to you some time ago that by whatever means GEORGE H. PENDLETON could clog the wheels of the Government in its efforts to crush rebellion, he did it. In 1862 he proclaimed against paper currency to be issued by the Government; in 1867 he is foremost in the advocacy of it. By the law passed less than $400,000,000 of this legal-tender currency was issued. Now GEORGE H. PENDLETON proposes, in a speech in Grafton, Va., July 16, 1868, as follows:

"Three hundred and thirty millions of bonds are held in the Treasury Department as security for the national bank circulation. Redeem them the very instant you have the option to do so, with legal-tender notes, and let them supply the place of the bank paper. Five hundred millions of the first issue of five-twenties are already, or will this year be, payable at the option of the Government. Redeem them also in legal-tender notes. But, gentlemen, if these measures would not supply funds, speaking for myself, I would expand the currency; I would correct the evils that have been produced by such extraordinary and unprecedented contraction. The business of the country has become adjusted to a larger volume of currency than we now have. The demands of the South and West require a greater amount of currency."

So that you see by this, as well as by others of his speeches, what his position has been for the last ten years.

In January, 1862, Congress had under consideration the enactment of the law for the issuing of the legal-tender Treasury notes. Mr. PENDLETON, then in Congress, presented his opposition to it, met it boldly, and took the position, first, that there was no power, under the Constitution, in the General Government, to issue any such notes. If there was, then, no such power, will some one point out to me wherein, and by what means Congress has since acquired that power, and where Mr. PENDLETON will discover it? I will say to you that in a speech Jan. 19, 1862, he denied the power of the Government to make Treasury notes, whether they were legal tenders or not, and in so doing he cited the decisions of Chief Justice MARSHALL, defining "bills of credit as a paper medium, intended to circulate between individuals," and he recited the history of the Confederation, and the calamities it wrought—the history of the Constitutional Convention and the debate therein, which resulted in the denial to Congress of the power to make paper money a legal tender. He repeated the emphatic language of WEBSTER, saying, "Congress can alone coin money, and fix the values of foreign coin; no State can coin money; no State can fix the value of foreign coin. No State, not even Congress itself, can make anything a legal tender but gold and silver in payment of debts. Gold and silver, by the rates fixed by Congress, constitute the legal standard of value in this country; neither Congress nor any State has authority to establish any other standard or to displace this."

In the same speech he said this:

"I believe that this Government has reached a crisis in its history. By wisdom it may overcome the evils of secession; by its great powers and resources it may be able to defend itself against those in arms against it; but I firmly believe it cannot maintain itself against the shock of the accumulated and manifold dangers which follow invariably closely in the walk of illegal, unsound and depreciated Government paper currency."

How does that strike you? But that is not all. He now proceeds to show that any currency that is not readily convertible into gold and silver is unsafe, unreliable, and ought not to be made. said he: "There is no time when the faith of the Government is pledged to their payment."

Is there any time to be pledged to the payment of the "greenbacks" he now proposes to issue? Not any. They are in the same condition precisely; for if you fix the time for their redemption they would be entirely in a different character of paper currency, and one that he does not allude to. He says:

"The wit of man has never discovered a means by which paper currency can be kept at par value, except by its speedy, cheap, certain convertibility into gold and silver. Unless convertible they have always depreciated, they always will depreciate; they ought to depreciate, because they are only valuable as the representatives of gold and silver. You send these notes out into the world, stamped with irredeemability. You put on them the mark of Cain, and like Cain they will go forth to be vagabonds and fugitives upon the earth."

And yet Mr. PENDLETON is now advocating the issue of $200,000,000 more "Cains" with three hundred millions more "marks" upon them, to be "fugitives" throughout the land. [Applause.] What, then, will be the consequence? The currency will be expanded, prices will be inflated; fixed values will depreciate; incomes will be diminished; the savings of the poor will vanish; the hoardings of the widow will melt away; bonds, mortgages and notes, everything of fixed value will lose their value; everything of unchangeable value will be appreciated; the necessities of life will rise in value; the Government will pay twofold—certainly largely more than it ought—for everything that it goes into the market to buy; gold and silver will be driven out of the country. What then? The day of reckoning must come. Contraction will follow. Private ruin and public bankruptcy, either with or without repudiation, will inevitably follow.

REMOVAL OF DISABILITIES.

A Liberal Policy Urged—Address to the Republicans of Ohio County, West Virginia.

An address has been issued to the Republicans of Ohio County, West Virginia, signed by a number of leading citizens who, the Wheeling Intelligencer says, fairly express by their influential and representative character the aggregate Republican opinion of the county. The address is called forth by the approaching election for county officers and members of the Legislature, and the material portion of it we quote:

"You have all so far observed the signs of the times as to be well aware that a decided change has been, and is now, going on in public opinion all over the country, in respect to the permanent disfranchisement of the great mass of those who stand implicated in the rebellion. You have seen that the Government has granted them general amnesty and, following its example, that such States as Missouri and Tennessee, which were not long ago more extreme than our own, have greatly relaxed the rigor of their test oaths and materially enlarged the scope of their elective franchise. It is well understood that the Administration at Washington and the leading minds generally of the Republican Party in all the departments of the Government, favor and seek to promote this liberalized policy on the part of the States. It is also as near certain as anything in the future can be, that the day of complete enfranchisement for all men, white and black, is close at hand. This is the manifest tendency of the times and very soon we must all accept the fact, willingly or otherwise.

The next session of Congress will most likely see all the States once more restored to their places in the Union, with representatives in both branches, and there is scarcely a doubt of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which amendment forbids all political discriminations in any of the States on account of race or color.

This being the situation throughout the country, does it not become us, in justice to our own ideas and sympathies, to adopt a party policy in harmony with this prevailing tendency of the times, if we desire and expect to maintain the ascendancy of the political organization to which we belong?

We believe that the test oaths that were adopted in this State during and at the close of the war were, in the main, necessary, if not absolutely indispensable. They protected the weak and exposed counties against the proscription and aggression that must have followed a return of the disloyal element to power and influence. And, to-day, we believe we could safely throughout the whole State as a part of the great moral lesson taught by the war. But while all this, and more, is true, yet it is also true that, under the protection thus afforded to loyalty, abuses of power, to some extent, have grown up. But this is not the place, nor the time, to particularize instances, even do not propose it certainly known to what extent power has really been abused in some of the counties in the matter of registration. The abuse of power is as old as the human race, and is generally to be expected under favoring circumstances. And while we do not forget the responsibility of the rebellion itself for these abuses, both in the way of precept and example, nor ignore the provocations that have tended to excite passionate executions of the law, yet we cannot on that account lose sight of the great truth that the just province of all law is the protection of society and not the punishment of the offender. And, therefore, no rigor, or semblance of persecution, is excusable after the public safety is reasonably assured. And as regards the safety of our loyal people at this time, even in the most exposed counties, our information impresses us with the belief that we can afford to inaugurate the necessary steps for discontinuing everything known as war legislation.

On this point we wish to be distinctly understood, as follows: We do not advocate an instant abrogation of the disfranchising clause in our Constitution, for that is impossible, but we do favor prompt steps by our next Legislature toward putting it in process of repeal—a process, by the way, that will consume upward of two years from next Winter. And, in the meantime, we shall hope to see the next Legislature take early opportunity to do away with the test oaths now resting upon lawyers, suitors and schoolteachers. These oaths have had their day, and, whatever their services in the past, their future advantage to the State may well be doubted. And as for the voters' oath, we presume by the time it can be legally dispensed with under the repeal process alluded to, there will be few disinterested citizens in our midst, however bitter their remembrances of the war, who will really regret its discontinuance. And finally, as regards the present Registry law, while expressing our earnest attachment to the plan of guarding the purity of the ballot-box by a registration of all the qualified voters of the State, still we shall receive with satisfaction at the hands of the Legislature such a modification of existing features, as will, among other things, provide for the election of the officers of registration by the people, instead of their appointment by the State Executive, and in such manner, also, as will secure the minority one representative in every County Board, believing that these changes will secure the best guarantee for an impartial execution of the law.

We believe that a gradually liberalized policy like this is not only just and right of itself, but in keeping with the grand record of patriotism and statesmanship made by the Republican Party throughout a contest unparalleled for its extent and bitterness. History relates no more enviable achievements than those of this great party, which, coming into life to prevent the Republic from being converted into a slave empire, has come out of a long and successful war true to its first inspirations in favor of justice and humanity toward all classes of men. We believe that in consistency with this record of our party at large throughout the country, and as a matter of expediency among ourselves, that we cannot afford to keep a large body of our fellow-citizens perpetually disfranchised, and thereby perpetually disaffected. Ostracism within the State tends to bring about emigration from the State. Permanent disfranchisement is not in keeping with a form of government like ours; and were its continuance possible by the will of the majority, which it is not, the end could not be otherwise than disastrous to the public welfare. An enlightened public sentiment, therefore, demands that there shall be no longer delay in such practical measure as absolutely necessary, and we have daily evidence that a change to this effect is going on, not only in this locality, but throughout West Virginia.

Hence, in conclusion, every consideration that can appeal to us from the better instincts of our human nature in favor of that mercy toward the erring which we all need, down to the best interests of our mere party organization, prompt us to lay before our Republican brethren of Ohio County these views, and to ask them to unite with us in giving them effect in the canvass this Fall.

Governor Hoffman and the Ratification of the Amendment.

From the Albany Journal, Aug. 31.

Considerable comment—more than seems necessary—has been occasioned by the failure of Governor HOFFMAN to transmit to Washington a statement that the Fifteenth Amendment had been indorsed by our Legislature. It will be remembered that the action was in the form of a joint resolution. As this does not require the Governor's signature, and as he was not requested to make the notification, he probably assumed that there was nothing for him to do in the premises. The Detroit Post (Rep.) considers this as taking a very unfair partisan advantage; while the Rochester Union (Dem.) hopes the next Legislature will be politically so constituted that it will take no steps to supply the omission. Really, we do not see that the course of the Governor has any effect whatever upon the measure. He might have notified the State Department of the facts had he seen fit to do so; but his failure does not involve the slightest consequence. The act of the Legislature was complete in its form, it is a matter of official record, and such is capable of proof in any form required. It is operative equally with or without Executive sanction. If the requisite number of States three-fourths—with New-York, indorse the amendment, nobody need fear that it will fail to become a part of the Constitution because Governor HOFFMAN did not write an official letter to Secretary FISH, apprising him of the passage of the joint resolutions.

Two Boys Saved from Drowning by a Woman—An Iowa Ida Lewis.

From the Davenport (Iowa) Democrat, Aug. 25.

Two young gentlemen, JAS. JOHNSON and WM. SILVER, each about 16 years of age, took an old skiff last evening from the foot of Warren-street and commenced pulling toward Maple Island. When between that spot and Willow Island, the boat, which was old and leaky, rapidly filled, and in their attempt to bail her out with their caps, they turned her over. The daughter of a fisherman living on Mill-street saw the accident, and getting into a small flat-bottomed boat which chanced to be at hand, paddled to the scene of the disaster. On arriving she found one of the young gentlemen clinging to the upturned skiff, while the other, exhausted and ready to give in, supported himself on as bar. The brave girl assisted them into her boat, and with true feminine policy, made the overturned skiff fast astern and returned to shore. In all human probabilities these boys owe their lives to the presence of mind and ready assistance of this young woman, whose conduct their parents will not allow to go unrewarded.

Will of the Late Judge McDonald.

From the Indianapolis, Sentinel, Aug. 31.

The last will and testament of the late Judge DAVID MCDONALD was admitted to probate yesterday. We glean the following items from the document:

To my grandchildren, ELLA VENABLE, ALICE VENABLE, WM. VENABLE and MARY G. M. VENABLE, I bequeath my farm in Vertland, Marion County.

To my daughters, ELLA RAY, FLORA and LILLIE MCDONALD, I devise in fee simple my house and lot where I now reside, No. 94 North Pennsylvania-street.

To my son, DAVID H. MCDONALD, my large photographic likeness; also my two large manuscript books, in which I have noted many things touching theology, morality, science and literature; also all my diaries; also my little manuscript book, containing sketches of myself and kindred.

To my son, CURRAN E. MCDONALD, I bequeath my manuscript book of poetry; also all my manuscript discourses, lectures on law, and other manuscripts not herein specified.

Other articles of minor consideration were willed to his daughters. He desired that two men should be selected by his executors to appraise his law library, and that JOHN W. RAY should have the privilege of purchasing it at two-thirds of the price of such appraisement. If not purchased by Mr. RAY, then to sell it at auction to the highest bidder.

What is left of the estate is to be divided in two equal parts between DAVID H. MCDONALD and the executors, in trust for CURRAN E. MCDONALD.

"I appoint DAVID H. MCDONALD and JOHN W. RAY as my executors. I trust that all my kindred be named in the will. Though they may not all be satisfied with its provisions, I will at least believe that I have endeavored to treat them all justly and equitably. To them all I bequeath my undying love. May we meet again."

THE NEW FISH MARKET.

Description of the New Market of the Fishmongers' Association at Fulton Ferry—The Building to be Completed in October.

On the 22d day of April last the Legislature passed an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Fulton Market Fishmongers' Association of the City of New-York," and authorizing the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of this City to lease to that association, for the period of ten years, "all the premises now used and occupied as a fish market at the slip on the East River within the said City next northeasterly of Fulton-slip, including the easterly half of Pier No. 21 and the westerly half of Pier No. 23 on either side of said slip, for the distance of half of the said piers in length from the bulkhead of said slip on South-street, together with the said bulkhead with the appurtenances." This act was passed to enable the Association to erect on the premises specified a structure for market purposes to replace the tumble-down sheds that have for years been devoted to the sale of fish. The Association is made up altogether of the fish dealers at Fulton Market, Mr. CHARLES MILLER being its President, and has a capital of $3,000,000. In accordance with the laws a lease was executed to the Association, for ten years, from the 1st of June, 1869, at a rental of $5,000 per annum, and contracts for the erection of an appropriate market building were immediately entered into with Mr. BERNARD KELLY and Mr. WM. F. MORGAN—the former to lay the foundation on piles, and the latter to erect the building itself. The bulkhead was made entirely new, the old one being removed. Two hundred and forty-six piles were driven, and on these massive beams were placed for foundation purposes. The building is to be of framework, and to occupy all the space between Piers Nos. 21 and 22, and will be 193 feet long, fronting on South-street, by 60 feet deep, from the bulkhead outward over the slip. It is to have two stories—the lower one to be fifteen feet six inches, and the upper one twelve feet six inches, in the clear. Surmounting the roof there will be three domes—one in the centre and one at either end. The first story will be devoted to the sale of fish, and the upper one is to contain a large room for the holding of meetings of the Association and its Executive Board, the remainder of this floor being used for storage purposes. The floor of the first story has a slant of six inches from the front, so as to enable the water which necessarily accumulates in such a place to run into the river, and thus aid in keeping the market in a cleanly condition. This floor (now nearly all laid) is composed of white Canada pine, the strips being thirty feet in lenghth and six inches square. The second story is supported by solid girders of the same material, (unspliced,) each being sixty feet long, and fastened to the uprights with strong iron bolts. The first story will accommodate eighteen stands, each running the entire width of the building, and supporting these there are, under each, seventeen iron columns, fifty-one in all, which rest on plates embedded on the foundation beams, thus admitting of the removal of the flooring at any time without weakening the structure in any part thereby. The inside of the market proper is to be lighted by 150 gas burners, and in front of the building there will be eighteen gas lamps. The flooring is to be capable of sustaining 700 tons weight to every 40 square feet. The whole structure will cost upward of $100,000. It is anticipated that the building will be ready for opening on the 15th of next October, as 150 workmen are now engaged in erecting the building, though the contractor, Mr. MORGAN, has till the 1st of November for the completion of the work. The market business is now being carried on on the slip adjoining Fulton Ferry, temporary structures having been put up there for that purpose. The following gentlemen of the Association are the Building Committee in charge of the work: T. R. CROCKER, CHAS. MILLER and GILBERT COMSTOCK. The fishmongers say that when the market is completed it will be superior to any now known devoted to their business. By the terms of the act of incorporation the Association is compelled to keep the piers, Nos. 21 and 22, in good order, and the work of repairing these in a substantial manner is already begun.

Four-Oared Race of the Nassau Rowing Club.

This event, which comes off at 5 P. M. on Monday next, is a contest for supremacy between two four-oared crews picked from the best oarsmen of the Club, The Nassaus, now numbering upward of one hundred members, propose to be represented eventually in the various amateur contests on American waters, and this is their first step in the development of a representative six-oar crew, to be made up with the winners at this race. The two crews have been in active training for the past four weeks, one on the Passaic and the other on the Harlem River. The race will be rowed on the English plan, straight away with the tide, and will come off on the Nassau course, from Seventy-first to One Hundred and Thirty-first street, a measured three miles. The boats were both built by JAMES MCKAY, an English builder at Harlem, and are both of exactly the same model and dimensions, being forty-four feet long and twenty inches wide; no coxswain, steered by the bow oar. They are beautiful specimens of workmanship.

The following are the names of the contesting crews:

Challenging Crew—T. B. Baldwin, Captain and stroke; F. G. Brown, No. 2; George H. Henry, No. 3; J. B. Robert, bow.

Accepting Crew—J. C. Babcock, Captain and bow; E. A. Tappin, No. 2; G. S. Walsh, No. 3; J. H. Miller, stroke.

The bow-oarsmen of the respective crews are to be the judges, and the President of the Club, General LLOYD ASPINWALL, the referee. The prizes are to be four gold medals, one for each of the winning crew.

The style of stroke, as adopted by the Baldwin crew, differs from that of the Babcock crew, the former being seated on a direct line over the keel, after the Harvard style, while the other adopts the English style of sitting over to the side, with less leverage inboard. This difference of rig is the occasion of so marked a difference in the American and English styles of rowing, and will be put to a second test.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Steam Communication with Europe and the Orient—The Management of the State Canals.

The Chamber met at its rooms, corner of William and Cedar streets, at 1:40 P. M. yesterday, Hon. GEO. OPDYKE, First Vice-President, in the chair.

Mr. G. W. DOW moved that a special meeting be held on Saturday, Sept. 18, to elect a Pilot Commissioner, as the term of office of one of the Board of Commissioners (Mr. TAYLOR) expires on that day. The motion was agreed to.

A communication from the Citizens' Association was read in relation to the adoption of some measure whereby the management of the State canals may be improved, and the annual expense of repairing the same reduced. The Association requests the Chamber to appoint a committee to confer with a like committee from its body in relation to the matter. The request was agreed to, and the Chair appointed the following-named gentlemen as such committee: JAMES P. WALLACE, JEREMIAH P. ROBINSON, WILLIAM H. FOGG, WILLIAM H. GUYON and PAUL N. SPOFFORD.

A communication was read from JAMES C. JEWETT, Manag

ployed in that branch of the revenue service. This step has been taken in consequence of the late reprehensible proceeding, which have occurred in that department, and is a new feature in the carrying out of the Customs collection—the Weighmaster's employes never having been before compelled to subscribe to the oath of office.

THE REVENUE FRAUDS.

The Case of Archer Brothers—Examination on the Charge of Representing Highwines as Rectified Spirits—Testimony for the Prosecution.

The examination of CHARLES S. and WASHINGTON ARCHER, on the charge of "branding and shipping spirits as rectified when they were highwines," was commenced before Commissioner SHIELDS yesterday morning. The charge forms one of several which have recently been preferred against the defendants, all of which relate to revenue matters. The case has excited considerable interest, both of the accused having been prominently connected in business in this City for the past thirty years. Assistant District-Attorney PURDY conducted the examination for the Government.

Thomas F. Stark testified: I live at Canandaigua, N. Y.; I am an attorney-at-law; I was present at a trial at the last Circuit at Canandaigua between Archer Brothers and the Sheriff; I think Washington Archer testified at the trial; the suit was to recover the pay of ten barrels of highwines seized by the Sheriff; W. Archer claimed the highwines; at the trial he testified that he shipped the ten barrels to one L. B. Garlinghouse, as his agent; he testified that Garlinghouse made a false report to him; he said they were highwines, and claimed $1 20 a gallon for them; he testified on the trial that they were marked rectified spirits, and that they contained grain highwines; he said that he shipped them in two lots of five barrels each, so that the Government officers should not know anything about them; I was attorney for Garlinghouse, and as such was compelled to take particular notice of the transaction; the liquor was turned out to me afterward; two or three barrels contained highwines; W. Archer identified this liquor as belonging to him.

Cross-examined—Garlinghouse was a liquor dealer at Canandaigua; I was present during the whole trial; the liquor seized by the Sheriff and put in jail was not rectified spirits; I sold it as highwines; I was sent to this examination by Collector Holmes of my district.

Re-direct—I have no interest in this case one way or the other.

Charles A. Garlinghouse testified: I live at Canandaigua; I am in the employ of L. B. Garlinghouse, my father; I am a practical rectifier; I was present at the trial between the Sheriff and Archer; I recollect the testimony of Washington Archer; he admitted that he shipped ten barrels of highwines in two separate lots; he testified that he superintended the shipping; he admitted on the cross-examination that the tax was $2 a gallon, and that of the spirits sold for $1 40; I noticed the brand on the barrels; they were branded rectified spirits; I tasted them and rectified a portion of them; I accompanied Mr. Archer to jail to identify the liquor; he identified the barrels; I have been a practical distiller six years; I never have known highwines to be branded as rectified spirits during my experience in the trade.

Cross-examined—The contents of the six barrels had not been run through charcoal; I know the Government brands on liquors; there may be brands that I know nothing of; I was present at the trial nearly all the time; Archer testified that the spirits were forty to forty-five degrees above proof; the fact that the barrels were branded rectified spirits when they were highwines first attracted my attention to them.

Benjamin F. Clayton testified: I am Deputy Collector in the Third District; I have dealt in spirits for five years; the proper brand for highwines is sometimes "highwines" and sometimes "copper distilled spirits;" there is no such brand known to the trade as "highwines" for rectified spirits.

The case was adjourned until Monday next at 11 o'clock.

Billiards.

The absorbing topic in billiard circles just now is the match between JOHN DEERY, of this City, and MELVIN FOSTER, of New-London, Conn. At the close of the protracted series of games which conferred upon DEERY the Diamond Cue and the title of Master Billiard Player, he was challenged by FOSTER, the only one who in the tournament had defeated him. Yesterday the representatives of the two players met, and, it having been ascertained that the Hippotheatron could be secured for the 14th inst., it was decided that the contest should take place on that date. The rules governing the championship require that every contest for the Cue shall consist of 1,500 points, caroms, played with 2¾ balls on a four-pocket table, having the Phelan cushion; that, in addition to the Cue, there shall be a stake of $500 a side, neither more nor less; and that the winner of a match played in public shall defray all expenses. It is furthermore stipulated, in order to insure scientific play and a thorough test of skill, that there shall be neither crotching nor "cornering" of balls, nor push strokes, and that all caroms shall count alike. As thus modified, the American game is faultless, and is being gradually adopted by the clubs. If at certain stages it requires less manipulative skill than the French game, it at all times calls for the exercise of more judgment; there is more spirit in it than in any other game, and repeated experiments have demonstrated that no other game so well subserves all the purposes of a public contest. DEERY and FOSTER are in excellent play, and, although the latter is slightly the favorite, it is conceded upon all sides that the struggle will be close. In point of skill, it would be impossible to find two players better fitted to oppose each other; but in a public contest at billiards, with reputation and money at stake, skill is secondary. Nerve is paramount, and nerve will determine the contest between DEERY and FOSTER. The former is practicing at O'CONNOR'S, while FOSTER is perfecting himself at his room in New-London, giving most of his opponents the odds of grand discount in games of 200 points.

Narrow Escape of a Rye Sailing Party.

A party of gentlemen, residing in Rye, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday. They had been out fishing in a sail-boat near the "Hen and Chickens," and were returning, when the boat capsized, and the party were thrown out. Their names were ABNER MILLS, Esq., and his son-in-law, Mr. JACKSON, THOMAS WILSON, Esq., THOMAS and RICHARD DOWNING and Mr. LOSEE, Sr. As they were clinging to the bottom of the boat, they were perceived by THOMAS L. RUSHMORE, Esq., of Mamaroneck, who was out sailing, and who succeeded in rescuing them from their exceedingly dangerous position. They were afterward taken to his residence and cared for, and returned to Rye on the evening train.

The Late Bank Defalcation at Yonkers.

All the assets, books and other property of the banking-house of T. F. MORRIS & Co. have been turned over to the assignees, Messrs. JOHN WHEELER and PHILIP A. DEYO, who will attend to the settlement of the affairs as early as possible. Mr. STOKES, the defaulting cashier, was still in Canada a few days ago. In the course of a conversation with F. A. COE, Esq., who was deputed to see him in behalf of his late employers and their creditors, he manifested a bold and defiant attitude in the matter, and declared in very emphatic language that he would not give up one cent. Mr. COE remarked on his return that during the course of his extended experience he had never met a more barefaced or heartless villain.

A Brooklyn Burglar Caught in an Unexpected Trap—He Dies in the Hospital.

At an early hour yesterday morning ROBERTS' Wall-street stores in Furman-street, Brooklyn, was the scene of a tragedy of a somewhat peculiar character. It appears that GEORGE HENRY WASHINGTON and another man whose name has not transpired, employed in the stores referred to, started out on a burglarious expedition; that they entered the building in some manner not yet fully elucidated, and that they were in the act of transferring a quantity of dry goods to some person outside. The theory advanced by those who visited the premises is that the burglar WASHINGTON was in the act of pulling a piece of dry goods out of a bale on the upper floor of the building, when he slipped back and fell down the fall or hatchway. The criminal companion made his way out and fled, leaving the victim to writhe in pain until he might be picked up by the first person entering the store in the morning. It was not until the wife of the unfortunate WASHINGTON went to the stores, about 6 o'clock in the morning, that his situation was known. She applied to the private watchman, J. FRITZ, who, upon opening the door, found WASHINGTON lying in a mangled and insensible condition. He was at once removed to the City Hospital, where he died yesterday afternoon. The Coroner stated that the skull of deceased was crushed and fractured, and most of his ribs were broken and the body otherwise fearfully bruised. It appears that deceased left home in company with his burglarious confederate about 12 o'clock on Wednesday night; that the latter returned home, when the wife of deceased asked him for her husband. He replied that he was at the stores. The wife becoming uneasy went in search, and made the discovery described. It is understood that a series of burglaries has taken place at those stores within a short period, which, for reasons which cannot be divined, have been kept from the public.

Kings County Board of Supervisors.

The Kings County Board of Supervisors met yesterday afternoon, Supervisor OSBORNE, President, in the chair.

Supervisor CROOK presented the petition of DENNIS DRISCOLL, asking the Board to make an appropriation of $300, that being the amount of bounty promised by the County of Kings in January, 1865, and the petitioner having enlisted under such promise. The petitioner states that he enlisted in the Marine Corps after the war, and did not return to Brooklyn until a few days ago. Referred to the Law Committee.

Supervisor LITTLE, of the Special Committee on the Equalization of State Taxes, reported that the State Assessors were now in session at Albany, and he thought that when the result of their deliberations should appear, it would be found that the State tax of Kings County would be no higher than it was last year.

Supervisor CROOK moved that it be referred to the Supervisor of the Seventeenth Ward to examine the bridge over Newtown Creek, between Greenpoint and Hunter's Point, and report its condition to the Board, and state whether it requires any or what work or repairs for its safety.

Supervisor DROLL said that the Commission to whom the construction of the bridge alluded to was intrusted, spent $42,000 in the work and it was worthless. The matter was referred, as proposed.

The Board then adjourned.

The Poor of Kings County, and What They Cost.

The annual report of the Superintendents of the Poor of Kings County, which was to have been presented to the Board of Supervisors yesterday, is printed in a neat pamphlet.

From this report it appears that the expense of supporting the poor of the county has increased $75,000 over the amount needed during the last year, and $150,000 more than in the year previous to that. The Superintendents set forth that the increase alluded to is not as large in proportion as the increase in the number of paupers, and they assume that the increase of pauperism is not disproportionate to the increase of population. Pauperism, they represent, has a proportion to the population equal to one in 532, the total number of paupers being 7,516, and the expenditures for their support for the year will amount to $550,000. The average cost of paupers in the county is set down at $3 each per week. The report states that the amount called for, $550,000, includes the erection of a new brick dead-house, and the fencing, grading, &c., of the grounds at the Lunatic Asylum. The Superintendents also propose to have a workhouse built in which to employ able-bodied paupers.

THURSDAY, Sept. 2—P. M.

A very decided, and in point of wealth, strong Bull movement was inaugurated in the Gold Room to-day, to advance the price of Gold by main force—that is, by bold and continued buying. At noon, when the quotation in the open market stood about 133@133¼ ₱ cent. the Treasury Office sold $1,000,000 to the highest bidders, who proved to be Messrs. MARVIN BROTHERS, at 133.66 ₱ cent. Other parties bid unsuccessfully, all together, to the extent of $5,450,000 at figures ranging from 133.15 to 133.51 ₱ cent. After the award the sales in the Gold Room were first at 133¼@133¾ ₱ cent., from which there was a further rapid advance to 133¾@134@134¼@134¾, and by the close of business hours to 135@135¼ ₱ cent. The bidding was for large sums; at one time for all the Room would sell. The movement indicated a determined purpose to force the market up two or three points at any risk or cost, irrespective of the Foreign Exchanges, which fell to 109@109¼ ₱ cent., or the Foreign news, or the Public Funds, or, in short, of any other influence which an ordinary calculation might be supposed to operate adversely to any important rise in Gold. The Customs demand of the day amounted to about $800,000, in addition to which $300,000 was deposited in the Treasury Office, probably for California account. The Bull party in Gold are probably safe in the calculation that no further sales will be made from the Treasury for two weeks, and but little more Gold Interest paid out until November, while on the other hand the Customs demand for Gold will continue on a liberal scale. But with all these seeming advantages the question recurs as to a market to sell upon when the party grow tired of buying.

Money was in good offering to-day at 6@7 ₱ cent. to the Brokers, with some exceptions in favor of the great dealers in the Public Funds as cheap as 5 ₱ cent. per annum.

The Public Funds showed some weakness about noon to-day, the 5-20s of 1867 declining to 120½@121 ₱ cent. as against 121¼ ₱ cent. last night, and other of the Gold-bearing Stocks were from ¼ to ½ ₱ cent. cheaper. The feeling for an hour or two seemed quite bearish, but soon after the Second Board adjourned prices showed a general recovery, and the closing quotations are within ¼@½ ₱ cent of the latest figures of Wednesday night. The Southern State Bonds were steady in prices upon a light business. The Railway speculation was higher on the Vanderbilt New-York Stocks, and especially buoyant on Central up to 107 ₱ cent., from which there was some reaction to 106¾@106½ ₱ cent. On the other hand most of the Western lines were weak, the exceptions being the St. Paul Stocks, which were partially improved on the turn in the Northwest election of yesterday. The weakest point on the Western list was Northwest Preferred, which fell below 92 ₱ cent.

After the late Board the following quotations were made, as compared with Wednesday night. The Gold market left off firm. In the Foreign Exchanges there was a considerable business done at 109@109½ ₱ cent., until the large rise in Gold, which checked operations. The Public Funds firm at the latest hour. The Railways irregular, with a bearish feeling against several of the Western Stocks, as well on light receipts at the close of August as on the division of yesterday in the Northwest clique and the marked want of success in the recent Lake Shore and Wabash consolidation. The Lake Shore Stock fell to-day below 105½ ₱ cent. The Southern State Bonds were partially better on Tennessees and North Carolinas.

At about 5:30 P. M. there was increased weakness shown on the Western Railways in sympathy with Northwest, which fell to 90¾ for the Preferred, and with Lake Shore, which closed 104½ ₱ cent.:

The Boston Post says:

"The recent failure on their extension of a boot and shoe firm in St. Louis is a rather severe blow to Pearl-street. The assets of the firm are about $150,000, and the indebtedness (most of it in Boston) is estimated at $400,000. One Boston firm has a bill for $50,000, and the claims of seven firms in Pearl-street foot up $200,000. Two or three Boston houses are nearly ruined by the failure, and there are circumstances connected with it not at all satisfactory to some of the creditors."

The earnings of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company for the fourth week in August, 1868, were $168,702; fourth week in August, 1869, $142,661—decrease, $26,041. For month of August, 1868, $561,263 43; for month of August, 1869, $501,666 18—decrease $59,597 25.

The Albany Argus says of the Flour and Grain movement on the Erie Canal:

"It has been stated that there was a large falling off in the movement of flour and grain on the Erie Canal, as compared with last year. The statistics at the office of the Auditor of the Canal Department show a different result, and one that is very satisfactory so far as concerns the business of 1869.

A comparison of the shipments of Flour and Grain at Buffalo to the 14th of August shows that in 1868 only 743 barrels of Flour had been shipped at that port, against 27,226 in 1869, a gain of 26,483. In 1868 there was shipped 2,229,929 bushels of Wheat, against 7,979,919 in 1869, a gain of 5,749,990 bushels. Of Rye, there was shipped in 1868, 7,343 bushels, against 36,935 in 1869, a gain of 29,292 bushels.

The shipments of Corn and Oats show a falling off, for the reason that the movement of these articles thus far this year is much smaller than in 1868. When the movement commences there is no doubt but that the canals will receive their share of the business. The shipments of Corn and Oats at Buffalo to Aug. 14 are thus reported:

	Bushels.
Corn, 1868	8,608,000
Corn, 1869	3,450,930
Decrease	5,157,070
Oats, 1868	3,388,096
Oats, 1869	1,581,840
Decrease	1,806,250

As we said before, there has been a decrease in the movements of Corn and Oats as compared with last year. These articles have not come forward, and hence it cannot be argued that there has been a diversion from the canal. But with this lack of movement, and with one week less navigation than in 1868, the Erie Canal has carried 2,689 more tons of Flour and Grain in 1869 than 1868.

It is confidently believed by those competent to judge, that this difference in favor of 1869 will be largely increased before the close of navigation."

Messrs. JOHN BINGHAM & Co., in their Liverpool Produce Circular, of Aug. 20, remark:

"The favorable change in the weather has had the effect of checking the upward movement in the country grain markets, and those held this week are reported dull, with a tendency to lower prices. The number of grain cargoes on passage to ports of call in the United Kingdom, according to last return, was as follows: 325 cargoes Wheat, 300 cargoes Maize, and 24 cargoes Barley. Same time last year, 279 cargoes Wheat, 85 cargoes Maize, and 53 cargoes Barley.

There are now on the coast for sale, 6 cargoes of Wheat, 1 cargo of Maize, and 0 cargoes of Barley, and the sales since our last embrace: Arrived—1 cargo (2,486 qrs.) Black Sea Wheat, at 52s. ₱ 492 lbs.; 1 cargo (1,600 qrs.) Danubian Wheat, at 42s. ₱ 480 lbs.; 1 cargo (2,726 qrs.) American Spring Wheat, at 50s. 6d. ₱ 480 lbs. On passage—12 cargoes (37,778 qrs.) Black Sea Wheat, at 53s. ₱ 480 lbs., and 47s. @ 55s. ₱ 492 lb.; 1 cargo (2,500 qrs.) Mediterranean Wheat, at 48s. 6d. ₱ 492 lbs.; 2 cargoes (3,200 qrs.) Baltic Wheat, at

The whole platform was, however, finally adopted, with but one amendment as to the name of the new organization, which is to be known as the "National Temperance Party." The Policy of Desperation.

If a debtor were to resist the judgment of a Court because a new election of Judges was approaching which he thought would result in the choice of a Judge who would reverse the decision which had been given against him, we should have no difficulty in deciding that his was a case for the Police or for the madhouse. Now, we do not wish to say harsh things of our contemporaries, but for the life of us we cannot distinguish the case of this refractory judgment debtor from that of the Governor of this State, if the World of yesterday morning correctly defines the position which he and his party are proposing to assume in reference to the action of this State on the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

The last Legislature, which, though not immaculate, no one ever pretended to consider an unconstitutional body, gave the vote of the State in favor of the Fifteenth Amendment. The World pronounces it a "brazen juggle" for this body to have gone through the form of ratifying that Fifteenth Amendment "before an election had intervened to give the people an opportunity to elect representatives with reference to this question."

The writer then proceeds to reveal a purpose—shall we not rather call it a conspiracy—on the part of the Governor, if, as the article would imply, the Governor is a party to it, to disregard the action of the last Legislature, in anticipation of a new Legislature being chosen reckless enough to repeal the resolutions of ratification.

We quote the language of the World:

"Luckily, the Legislature did not do its work with such thoroughness as to make its dishonest decision final. By a fortunate oversight, it neglected to make any provision for authenticating its ratification and transmitting it to Washington. Of course, it remains inoperative and cannot be counted without subsequent action by a new Legislature. The people thus recover an opportunity to pronounce their judgment on this important question, and if they shall deliberately repudiate the unauthorized action of the last Legislature, no honest man will say that their decision ought not to be respected."

This proposition strikes us as simply monstrous. What makes the approval of one Legislature more solemn than another, and if the next Legislature repeals the action of the last, what more certain event in the future than that its action in turn will be repealed by some subsequent Legislature? When is legislation to reach fixity and permanence under such a system? But we will not argue such a disorderly proposition.

This paragraph in the World brings to our attention the somewhat extraordinary fact that more than four months have elapsed since the adjournment of the Legislature, and yet Governor HOFFMAN has not yet transmitted an official notice of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Government. We have heard and can imagine no reason for this delay. Are we to look for it in this paragraph of the World? Does Governor HOFFMAN share the World's notion that it requires the votes of two successive Legislatures to ratify a constitutional amendment? And is he counting upon a Democratic Legislature next Winter to reverse the vote of its Republican predecessors? If that is not his purpose he had better separate himself from his New-York adviser and transmit the record of ratification to the Secretary of State without delay. We say he had better do it for his own sake and for the sake of his partisans. So far as the amendment is concerned it will make no difference. Nothing can be more conveniently dispensed with than the Governor's autograph in giving effect to this legislative ratification. The Federal Constitution provides that amendments "shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States," &c. The Constitution leaves it to Congress and the President to determine when they have sufficient evidence of the ratification of an amendment, and we fancy they can be satisfied without the autograph of Governor HOFFMAN, if it be his purpose to withhold it, a purpose, however, that it would never have occurred to us to impute to him but for the singular comment upon his delay in communicating the action of the last Legislature, which we find in the World.

It may be well enough to remind the World that there is no such thing as a final rejection of this amendment to the Federal Constitution. A State may vote against ratifying it a thousand times in succession; it will still be in the power of the same Legislature to take it up and ratify it, and when a sufficient number of States have accepted it the President will proclaim it a part of the Constitution of the United States.

The Suez Ship Canal.

After years of digging and dredging, the canal between the Red Sea and the Mediterranean is completed—the dream of engineers for ages has become an accomplished fact. This important event is thus briefly communicated in a telegram from the City of the Pharoahs, which appeared in yesterday's TIMES:

CAIRO, Sept. 1.—The Suez Canal is complete. The opening, with eight metres of water, is expected to occur on the 17th of December.

It was in 1854 that M. DE LESSEPS, having secured the friendly aid of the Viceroy of Egypt, MOHAMMED SAID, began his first survey for the present canal. Four years later a company was formed to undertake its construction; on the 25th day of April, 1859, the first spadeful of earth was turned at Port Said.

To appreciate the nature of the obstacles encountered in pushing this stupendous enterprise to success, we must recall precisely what has been done in these ten toilsome years. The ports connected by the canal are Said and Suez. Suez, the southerly outlet, is at the head of the Gulf of Suez, an arm of the Red Sea; Port Said, the northerly outlet, is on the Mediterranean, 125 miles east of Alexandria; the distance between these two points is ninety miles. Along the route, however, are several lakes and chains of lakes; and the Company's task was to connect these by a canal, and to deepen the channel through them. The difficulties of this task were increased by the great "sandstorms" from the desert, which threatened constantly to fill the canal. ROBERT STEPHENSON, the well-known engineer, in 1858—the year before M. DE LESSEPS began his work—publicly declared that "the Suez Canal would prove to be an abortive scheme, ruinous to its contractors." He wrote, also, to the Austrian Gazette, "I know that such a channel is impracticable; that nothing can be effected, even by the most unlimited expenditure of time, and life, and money, beyond the formation of a stagnant ditch, between two almost tideless seas, unapproachable by large ships under any circumstances." This opinion he had formed from a close personal examination of the region in 1847.

But the work really presented no new engineering problem—it only required great patience, industry and energy, and a long purse. The contractors, MM. BOREL and LEVALLEY, by employing novel machinery of prodigious power, were able, running it day and night, to dredge and tip no less than two and a half million cubic yards of earth per month! By the aid of a steam pump, water was mixed with the earth brought up by the dredge, and the mud so formed was spouted out upon both banks of the canal to such a distance and in such quantities as to form high, compact ramparts against the sand-showers blowing in from the desert. Ninety-six millions cubic yards of earth have thus been taken out; and there is left today a canal ninety miles long, 328 feet wide at the surface, and seventy-four feet wide at the bottom, and twenty-six feet deep throughout.

The harbors and basins built at Said and Suez are marvels of engineering, industry and energy. To guard against the filling up of the canal at the former point by the deposits of the Nile, great blocks of a composite stone, formed out of hydraulic lime ground to dust by powerful mills and mixed with sand, weighing twenty tons each, are sunk and piled in the harbor of Port Said, and broad and handsome piers are constructed thereon. Three hundred thousand tons of these have been used at Port Said alone.

The entire cost of this great work has been about $81,000,000. But to include improvements, which will be applied as experience may suggest, we may safely set the total sum at $85,000,000. Whether it will ever prove a great financial success, is a problem which English papers are now earnestly discussing; but one thing is pretty sure, it will not prove "an abortive scheme, ruinous to its contractors." The Company has already advantageously sold its various buildings on the line of the canal, and still has valuable lands on its banks, and especially at its two harbors. It is estimated by some authorities that the annual business of the canal will amount to 10,000,000 tons, and that its gross receipts will be 100,000,000 francs. The low toll of traffic—but ten francs per ton—across Egypt will attract an enormous trade, and already English and French merchants are building vessels expressly for canal navigation. Its present rate of movement is about 100,000 tons per annum, and when it is fully opened, it is easy to understand that this rate may be increased a hundred fold. Nearly or quite all the steam marine in the Asiatic trade will probably at once adopt this route.

If we in this country regard the Suez Canal with favor, and hail its opening as an advance step in science and civilization, our enthusiasm is at least of a very unselfish sort. The Suez Canal will prove a formidable enemy to us, in the coming struggle of the great Powers for commercial supremacy in Asia. Commerce seeks short cuts; and, accordingly, the impulse to cut through all isthmuses, be they Dutch Gaps or Dariens, is irresistible to the engineering and mercantile world, if a shorter ship route may be thereby gained. The Suez Canal furnishes such a route to the English and French marine that now traffic in Asiatic products. It is to Europe what a new Pacific Railroad or a new Pacific line of steamers is to the United States. It is even more, since it brings the ports of China, Japan and India, and the Asiatic markets in general, very many days nearer by a purely marine route, and without breaking bulk. In that sharp struggle for trade where every minute of time tells, a new conduit like the Suez Canal is inestimable.

The discovery of a shorter passage to the Indies around the Cape of Good Hope destroyed the chief commerce of the Mediterranean and the Adriatic, and made a ruin of some of the most magnificent cities of Europe. Will the restoration of the shorter direct route to the East, through the Mediterranean, bring back the commerce, the wealth, the luxury and power which was scattered by the discovery of VASCO DE GAMA?

What are Bankers and Brokers?

It appears by Washington dispatches of Tuesday last, that the questions raised by the bankers and brokers in reference to the tax on the capital employed and deposits held by them, are not to delay the proceedings of the Department; and that the assessments and collections are to be made at once. The Commissioner declines to permit the Government to lie out of its revenue while the contestants are taking the opinion of all the Courts between this and Washington on the subject. If might take years to obtain a final hearing before the Supreme Court; and if decided adversely to the brokers, it is not probable that one hundredth part of the taxes that are now due could then be collected.

The real question at issue, as we understand it, is a very simple one. There is a certain class of men in what is called "the Street," who style themselves brokers, but who transact a business that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue decides to be that of bankers, and which renders them liable to taxation, as follows:

First—A license, or special tax, when employing a capital of $50,000 or less, of $100 per annum; and when employing more than $50,000, two dollars for every additional thousand.

Second—A monthly tax of one-twenty-fourth of one per cent. on the average amount of capital employed by them in their business.

Third—A tax of one-twenty-fourth of one per cent. per month on the average amount of deposits received by them. The contestants deny that they are bankers, and therefore protest that they are not obliged to make the returns which the law requires of that class of business men.

For four years, though taking out a banker's license—usually for the nominal amount of $50,000—many of them have refused to make returns of their capital and deposits.

The Internal Revenue law imposes a penalty of $300 per month for each neglect or refusal. To collect this penalty, we are informed that one hundred suits, more or less, have been commenced in Brooklyn, and that a much larger number will shortly be brought in the United States Courts of this district. The main question involved will thus be raised in these cases, namely: Are they bankers? If so, have they made the returns required by law?

The necessity of some change in the present means of correcting and punishing refractory prisoners at Sing Sing and other penal institutions was the main subject of discussion at the recent Albany Conference between the Inspectors of State Prisons and the Special Committee of the Prison Association. The Inspectors were all agreed as to the impossibility of preserving order and subordination among prisoners while the Legislature maintained the restrictions it had placed upon the administration of physical punishment. The Inspector of the Auburn Prison said that the law of last Winter abolishing certain punishments had proved disastrous, and was the chief cause of the recent revolts. The same view was taken by the Inspector of the Clinton Prison, who also declared that there could be no prison discipline, unless provision were made for sharp, quick punishment—such as would not injure the convict, but would force him to perform his duty. The Inspector of the Sing Sing Prison attributed all the troubles there to the legislation of last Winter, and said they would not have occurred if means of punishment had been left to the prison officers. Governor HOFFMAN was present at the conference, and said he would not have given his approval to the legislation of last Winter but for the fact that it was demanded by public sentiment. On the other side of the question, no very striking ideas were enunciated at this meeting. Several gentlemen favored the application of "reformatory" processes in the treatment of prisoners, and others suggested various changes, of no great consequence, in the disciplinary laws. Nearly all expressed the idea that the present mode of punishmen by solitary confinement was ineffective, and was apt to be permanently injurious to those who suffered it.

Now, the kind of punishment prohibited by the legislation of last Winter was that known as the "shower-bath." A young man had just died from its effects, and such an amount of testimony was brought before the Legislature as to the destructive results it frequently produced, that the report upon which legislative action was taken, declared it should never be inflicted upon any human being. With the evidence in existence on the subject, we do not think there is much likelihood that the Legislature will again authorize the establishment of this kind of punishment. What then? Is prison discipline and order impossible without it? We believe not; and we have the evidence of prison authorities in other countries, and in other States of our own country, to sustain our opinion.

A Republican Movement Against Proscriptive Measures.

The policy of proscription as an agency for the maintenance of loyal supremacy has been fairly tried in three States. Tennessee, West Virginia and Missouri relied upon its efficacy while the conflict lasted, and have since had ample opportunities for testing its operation. Their experience has not been favorable to its continuance, and their changed attitude upon the subject suggests considerations which may be usefully pondered by those who would deal harshly, or suspiciously, with the States yet to be restored to the Union.

Tennessee, which pushed proscription to its furthest limits, is the first to proclaim its inexpediency. For the verdict just rendered by the people is much more than the result of political combinations prompted by a desire for office. Its inception is due to Republicans alone. Democrats helped to give it expression; but, after all, the movement for the removal of disabilities originated with prominent members of the Republican Party—men who had borne the heat and burden of a perilous conflict, and had the best right to judge of the exigencies it entailed. They longed for peace, and they had learned that proscription produces perpetual strife. They desired the continued dominancy of the party for which they had battled, and they came at last to understand that enduring party success cannot be separated from the public welfare. They discovered, in short, that republican government vests the power to rule in the whole people, and that any legislation in violation of this principle is in the end as impolitic as it is unjust. Tennessee is therefore prepared to throw off the fetters by which a large proportion of its people have been disfranchised, and to carry out the magnanimous policy with which the Chicago Convention identified the Republican Party.

Missouri moves more slowly. But influences are at work there which promise well. One of its Senators, CARL SCHURZ, as the author of the Chicago resolution, consistently advocates the reënfranchisement of the multitude whom the present law divests of the political privileges of citizenship. The leading Republican journals of the State are committed to the same course. There is no immediate occasion for active effort on the subject, but there is a wide-spread recognition of the evils attending proscription, and of the desirableness of an early change. There, as in Tennessee, ambitious and unscrupulous men make intolerance the measure of zeal; but the bulk of the intelligence and character of the Republican Party appears to be on the side of liberality, which in this case is but another word for justice.

And now the same spirit manifests itself formally and practically in West Virginia. For months past the Wheeling Intelligencer has scattered abroad the good seed, and there have been isolated though influential helpers in the cause. Something like organization now appears with the same object in view. An address to the Republican voters of Ohio County bears the signatures of the leading party men of Wheeling and its neighborhood—"many of whom," as the Intelligencer remarks, "are known personally and otherwise in all parts of the State," and all of whom are declared to be among the best and foremost citizens. Their title to speak in behalf of the party is attested by the fact that they are, mainly, the men "whose labors and contributions in times past built up the Union Party" in the country, and did much "toward creating and sustaining a sentiment of loyalty to the Government throughout the State during the war." These are witnesses who may properly demand a hearing, and to whose testimony Republicans throughout the country can scarcely be indifferent.

The testimony embodied in the address is striking enough to challenge attention on its merits. Admitting the use of the test oath and other stringent provisions while the war excitement was in full play, it declares that under the guise of protection to loyalty, power has been abused in the matter of registration. The test oath, too, has become vexatious, as well it may be since lawyers, suitors and school teachers are exposed to its operation. Its application to rebel voters is intelligible; but when extended to the ordinary vocations of life, as in West Virginia, it is a wrong which regard for loyalty may explain but cannot excuse. The pretence of necessity cannot be urged. "As regards the safety of our loyal people at this time," the address informs us, "even in the most exposed counties, our information impresses us with the belief that we can afford to inaugurate the necessary steps for discontinuing everything known as war legislation." As some of the proscriptive measures are incorporated in the Constitution, a couple of years must elapse before the work of abrogation can be completed. But the parties to the movement urge its commencement without delay. They advocate the earliest possible repeal of the test oaths at present applied to voters and others, and suggest the election of the officers of registration by the people, instead of by the Executive, as more likely to lead to an impartial execution of the Registry law.

The reasoning by which these statements and propositions are sustained is not new. It indicates a wholesome reaction against the fierce, vindictive temper which had expression in proscriptive enactments, and a correct appreciation of the force and direction of public opinion in regard to them. The address declares truly that the judgment and feeling of the country favor the obliteration of whatever tends to keep alive enmities and passions engendered by the war, and the adoption of a policy of conciliation as distinguished from the policy of proscription. "We cannot afford to keep a large body of our fellow-citizens perpetually disfranchised and thereby perpetually disaffected,"—is the sensible conclusion arrived at by the Wheeling Republicans. "Permanent disfranchisement is not in keeping with a form of government like ours," they add; "and were its continuance possible by the will of the majority, which it is not, the end could not be other than disastrous to the public welfare." These utterances have the ring of the true metal. The policy they affirm is that which, while most advantageous to the States in which proscription exists, is most in harmony with the interests of the Republican Party.

The Fifteenth Amendment—What Has Been Done Toward its Ratification.

A telegram from Washington the other day stated that, so far as appears from the records in the State Department, the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which provides that "the right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied by the United States, nor by any State, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude," has been completely ratified by twelve States only, while two have imperfectly ratified it, and two have rejected it. The twelve States, whose ratification is thus declared complete, are: Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The two whose ratification is incomplete are Kansas and Missouri, and the two which have rejected it are Delaware and Kentucky.

But this list is very far from being complete, owing to the neglect of State officials to forward to the Department certificates of the action had upon the amendment by the several Legislatures. And as there has been so much dispute upon this point, and so many erroneous statements have been published respecting the legislative action thus far had in reference to the ratification of the amendment, we have prepared the following statement, showing by what States it has been ratified, by what States rejected, and in what States no action has yet been had upon it. The statement has been carefully prepared, and is believed to be correct.

Briefly, then, the action had upon the amendment is as follows, the dates denoting the time when each State's action was complete, through the concurrent vote of both Houses of its Legislature:

Alabama—No action yet taken.
Arkansas—Ratified March 15, 1869.
California—No action yet taken.
Connecticut—Ratified May 13, 1869.
Delaware—Rejected March 18, 1869.
Florida—Ratified June 15, 1869.
Georgia—Rejected March 17, 1869.
Illinois—Ratified March 5, 1869.
Indiana—Ratified May 14, 1869.
Iowa—No action yet taken.
Kansas—Ratified February 27, 1869.
Kentucky—No action yet taken.
Louisiana—Ratified March 1, 1869.
Maine—Ratified March 11, 1869.
Maryland—No action yet taken.
Massachusetts—Ratified March 12, 1869.
Michigan—Ratified March 5, 1869.
Minnesota—No action yet taken.
Mississippi—No action yet taken.
Missouri—Ratified March 2, 1869.
Nebraska—No action yet taken.
Nevada—Ratified March 1, 1869.
New-Hampshire—Ratified July 1, 1869.
New-Jersey—No action yet taken.
New-York—Ratified April 14, 1869.
North Carolina—Ratified March 5, 1869.
Ohio—Rejected by Senate April 30, 1869.
Oregon—No action yet taken.
Pennsylvania—Ratified March 25, 1869.
Rhode Island—Senate ratified May 27, 1869.
South Carolina—Ratified March 13, 1869.
Tennessee—No action yet taken.
Texas—No action yet taken.
Vermont—No action yet taken.
Virginia—No action yet taken.
West Virginia—Ratified March 3, 1869.
Wisconsin—Ratified March 5, 1869.

The Federal Constitution provides that any proposed amendment must be ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States (unless Congress shall provide that the ratification shall be done by conventions in the several States called for the purpose) before it can become a part of the Constitution. In the above list there are thirty-seven States, and the ratification of twenty-eight is thus necessary to constitute the amendment a part of the Constitution. By the list it appears that nineteen States have already ratified it. Nine more are therefore necessary to render the ratification complete. By the requirements of Congress, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia must ratify the amendment before their reconstruction can be completed. These three States, added to the nineteen which have already ratified it, would make twenty-two States, leaving six yet required to render the action complete. And the States from which these six must be obtained are: Alabama, California, Delaware, Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, New-Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Vermont.

It should be remarked, however, that objection has been made to the action of some of the Legislatures. Kansas, Missouri and Nevada acted upon an imperfect telegraphic copy of the amendment, and adjourned before the official copy was received. It is contended, therefore, that their action was insufficient, and that their Legislatures must again vote in its favor to render the ratification legal and satisfactory. The Indiana Legislature ratified the amendment after nearly all the Democratic members had tendered their resignations and withdrawn from the two Houses in order to prevent its ratification. It is, therefore, contended by the opponents of the measure that no quorum was present in either House of the Legislature when the vote was taken, and that the ratification by Indiana is consequently without force and void. Friends of the measure, however, contend that these withdrawals did not leave either House without a quorum, as that depends upon the actual number of members at the time the action is taken, and not upon the number which would constitute a full representation of the State in both branches of the Legislature. Senator MORTON is among those who strenuously maintain the validity of this ratification, contending that the principle was long since established by usage. laws passed by the Legislature while in this condition having invariably been carried out as duly enacted, and two United States Senators having been chosen in disregard of this requirement.

Some of the papers have said that the amendment has been ratified by Alabama, Iowa and Minnesota; but this is a mistake. There has been no session of the Iowa Legislature since April, 1868, and it will not again assemble until 1870; nor has there been any session of the Alabama Legislature since the amendment was submitted by Congress. The Legislature of Minnesota was in session when the amendment was submitted, but declined to act on the telegraphic copy, and adjourned before the official copy was received from the State Department. The next session of the Legislature of that State will be held in 1870.

The Senate of Rhode Island ratified the amendment, as stated above, in May, but the House postponed its consideration until the next session in November.

The States which have ratified the amendment, but have not yet officially notified the State Department at Washington, are: Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nevada, New-Hampshire and New-York. Georgia rejected it subsequent to the expulsion of the colored members of the Legislature, but has not yet officially notified the State Department.

Mr. PENDLETON is more than the Democratic candidate for the Governorship of Ohio: he is the exponent of Democratic opinion and the hope of the great majority of Democrats throughout the country. Cheated out of the nomination for the Presidency in the New-York Convention last year, they look to him confidently as their standard-bearer in 1872. It is therefore desirable to put on record whatever tends to show what manner of man, politically, Mr. PENDLETON is. With this view, a recent speech of Lieutenant-Governor LEE, in Ohio, is in order. It is sharp, scathing, effective; full of facts, and strengthened by testimony furnished by Mr. PENDLETON himself. There are no vague allegations, no unsupported or unexplained censure. What the Lieutenant-Governor charges he proves from Mr. PENDLETON's lips. The whole indictment will take by surprise those who imagine that a change of spirit and purpose is discoverable in the Democracy. Here is their strongest and most popular man, with antecedents which convict him of hostility to the Union as decided as that which animated VALLANDIGHAM, and with a policy to-day which stamps him as an enemy of the national credit and of the conditions on which alone the peace of the country can be preserved. Consistent Mr. PENDLETON undoubtedly has been; but it is the consistency of Copperheadism, rank and unadulterated. The principles which led him to do what he could to break down the Government while the war was in progress now impel him to assail the foundations of the nation's prosperity. These are not pleasant reminiscences, but the Democrats will not allow us to forget them if we would.

Redemption of Greenbacks in Gold.

An intelligent correspondent, who has made the financial legislation of the country a special study, commenting upon the statement of the Tribune that "the redemption of the greenbacks in coin is not stipulated by any act of Congress," says that if the "word 'dollar' has any legal significance it means the dollar specified in our Coinage and Legal-tender laws, passed previous to the war." He then adds:

"But the question is now settled by positive law. The first act signed by President GRANT, (March 18, 1869,) contains these words: 'That in order to remove any doubt as to the purpose of the Government to discharge all its obligations to the public creditors, and to settle conflicting questions and interpretations of the law, by virtue of which such obligations have been contracted, it is hereby provided and declared that the faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment in coin, or its equivalent, of all the obligations of the United States not bearing interest known as United States notes.' And the United States also solemnly pledges its faith to make provision, at the earliest practicable period, for the redemption of the United States notes in coin.'

Nothing can be plainer than this law, and it is a complete answer to the assertion of the Tribune."

The Discovery of Bituminous Coal near Buffalo.

From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, Sept. 1.

Yesterday some persons who were prospecting on the farm of Mr. JOHN PATTERSON, at Cowlesville, in the town of Bennington, Wyoming County, discovered an opening from which they took out some specimens of a black substance which they thought looked like coal, smelt like coal, and was coal. Then, pursuing their investigations a little further, they found more of the coal, in larger particles, and, on going still deeper into the opening, became satisfied that they had stumbled upon an extensive vein of bituminous coal.

Samples of the coal were brought to this city. We have examined some of the specimens and seen them burn, and, to our unscientific eye and nose, they seem to be pieces of a very superior article of bituminous coal, resembling the famous Cannel coal.

The coal burns freely, and we should deem it to be excellent for making gas.

Mr. PATTERSON'S farm is situated on a branch of Little Buffalo Creek, about twenty-five miles from this city. Of course he will not be allowed to remain very long in doubt as to whether or no he is the fortunate owner of a coal mine. We understand that parties here have already made arrangements for satisfying themselves of the importance of the discovery.

We are informed that there is a gas well near the opening from which the coal was taken, and that two or three houses in the vicinity are lighted with gas from this well.

Effects of the Drought in Georgia.

From the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, Aug. 31.

For several weeks past this section of the State has been visited by a long-continued and very severe drought. What have been its effects on the cotton in some localities will be best shown by the following circumstance, which has been related to us by the best authority: On the plantation of Colonel F. D. D. TWIGGS, situated on the Savannah road, about ten miles from this city, there was, on last Saturday week, a tract of thirty acres of very fine cotton; its foliage was green and luxuriant; its growth was vigorous; it was as tall as a man's shoulder; and the stalks were loaded with fruit from top to bottom. Altogether it was as fine a piece of cotton as could be found anywhere, and a very large yield was confidently expected by its owner. A few days since, however, it began to feel the effects of the drought, and on last Saturday it presented a melancholy spectacle. It had lost its healthiness, its greenness and luxuriance of foliage, and looked like a field of what the planters term "bastard cotton." Worse than this, nearly every form had fallen from the stalk, and lay in heaps in the alleys between the rows, so that from the tract of thirty acres not more than one bale of the staple will be gathered.

Present Prospect of the Cotton Crop.

From the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, Aug. 29.

From information we have received from all quarters during the week, we are compelled to believe that the cotton crop bids fair to be much smaller even than last year. All persons concur in the opinion that the whole making of August is a loss. The bottom crop has opened rapidly, many of the bolls being quite small. Estimates of falling off in the last thirty days vary from one-third to one-half a crop. In counties of Middle Georgia we suppose more cotton will be picked and ready for the market by the 1st of September than was ready last year by Oct. 1. Indications are that the crop in many lower counties will all be picked by November, and all in the State by Dec. 1. We hope our people will get high prices to make up for their loss in quantity.

PRINCE ARTHUR.

His Sojourn in Halifax—Latest Fetes—The Route to Charlottetown—Prince Edward's Island and its Capital—Preliminaries of Welcome—Royalty's Reception—The Afternoon Levee—Promise of the Ball.

From Our Special Correspondent.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Monday, Aug. 30, 1869.

The safe arrival of Prince ARTHUR in this pleasant little place has given it a prominence it has not had since the Prince of WALES was a sojourner here nine years ago. The latest royal guest of the corporation reached town on Saturday evening last, having left Halifax that same morning.

SOJOURN AT HALIFAX.

The incidents of the reception of Prince ARTHUR in Halifax, N. S., have already been recounted. Those that followed his arrival, however, not having yet been touched upon, call for a brief reference. Though he was not wearied with attentions, he at least was not allowed to depart un-feted and unsung. After the already described formalities of Monday week had been ended, came a concert, a picnic, a sail through the harbor, which, with a number of lesser events, were graced by the royal presence. Tuesday the presence honored the picnic given by his Grace the Archbishop of Halifax, at the beautiful grounds of that gentleman at Northwest Arm. In the evening it gave moment to a musical reunion at the Horticultural Gardens, where the band of the Seventy-eighth Highlanders was heard to admirable advantage. Wednesday it was aboard the gunboat Mullett, and was saluted by the firing of guns, the displaying of bunting and the manning of yards as it inspected the forts and harbor. Afterward it was greeted at the Scottish gathering on McNab's Island, where it took unto itself many shapely creatures during the progress of a reel and quadrille. A review on the Common was had Thursday, and a private and very brilliant reunion aboard the French frigate Semiramis Friday.

NORTHWARD BOUND.

The Prince, with Colonel ELPHINSTONE and Lieutenant PICKARD, departed for Charlottetown, P. E. I., at 9 o'clock on Friday morning. A special train, consisting of a locomotive and two cars, had been provided and glided from the depot fifteen minutes later Usually large assemblages awaited the passing of the train at each of the way stations needed for the home transportation of common Nova Scotia, but the expectant crowd at each of them was doomed to disappointment, for no halt was made until Truro was signaled. Truro is a small town about fifty miles from Halifax. Most of the inhabitants were at hand to welcome the distinguished voyager, who replied—impromptu on this occasion—to an address read by Sheriff BLANCHARD. Then the Prince placed himself on the front platform of the rear car, and the curious were formed into a line, and marched through the foremost vehicle, passing from end to end, and emerging on the platform tenanted by the Prince, a good deal after the fashion of the visitors to the Morgue, who scan the inmates of that institution in precisely the same way. From this point to Albion Mines there was no delay. After five minutes had been allowed for a demonstration at this place—and it is fair to note that there and elsewhere the demonstrations were very enthusiastic—the train moved again, and halted at New-Glasgow. Then it hurried on to Pictou, where Sheriff HARRIS presented an address on behalf of the inhabitants. Thence the transferment of tourists and baggage to the gunboat Dart was promptly effected.

PRINCE EDWARD'S ISLAND.

To the general reader the name of Prince Edward's Island is not a familiar one. Its mention, in fact, far from calling forth an actual confession of ignorance, rather gives birth to an affirmation of it by the expression of a vague belief that the country referred to is in the vicinity of Van Dieman's Land, and therefore quite beyond the ken of unlearned humanity. Yet it is hardly eight hundred miles from New-York, and is likely when certain railroads now in process of construction are built, to be a delightful watering place for health-seeking Americans. In a very few years Prince Edward's Island will really be a most popular place of resort. One hundred and twenty miles in length and twenty-five in width, it is washed on one side by the waters of the Straits of Northumberland and on the other by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is distant, at its nearest point, but nine miles from the mainland of New-Brunswick. The soil of the island is rich and wholly under cultivation. The angler can find trout and salmon in inland waters, and mackerel and cod oceanward. The climate is most agreeable; warm days in Summer—that is to say, warm days in the American sense—are rare, and cool nights are to be enjoyed throughout the hottest period of the year. The 95,000 souls who now people the island will surely not be left to enjoy tranquilly all these pleasures when two days and a half of travel will rattle one from a heated metropolis to a healthful and cheap Summer home.

CITY OF CHARLOTTETOWN.

Charlottetown, where the Prince is at present sojourning, is the capital of the isle. It is situated in its centre, and has seven thousand five hundred inhabitants, ruled, in the absence of Lieutenant-Governor GEORGE DUNDAS, Esq., by the Government Administrator, Sir ROBERT HODGSON. Prince Edward's Island, I should note, is directly under the control of the British Government, and not part of the Confederation. The people are afforded excellent facilities for acquiring education. The average yearly taxation is estimated at three dollars per male head, and more than one-half of the amount thus collected is applied to educational purposes. In respect of town-sites the citizens of Charlottetown can boast of a pretty harbor, of two or three neat stone buildings saved to permanent purposes, and of the City Hotel, whither Americans flock with a certainty of securing accommodations not to be had elsewhere, and which would be accounted excellent in a much more pretentious place. The dwelling houses on the island are of wood, and a double ladder bestrides each roof as a fire escape. A disastrous conflagration that followed the Portland calamity in July, 1866, first awakened the inhabitants of Charlottetown to the perils of flames by night.

PRELIMINARIES OF WELCOME.

Taking into consideration the narrow limits of the city, the preparations for welcoming the Prince were quite liberal. In Queen-street, the main thoroughfare, every house had an outward tapestry of brightest bunting, and two superb triumphal arches of evergreens, with mottoes of greeting at every angle, and framed with many-colored flags, graced the road. At the wharf, on which Queen-street terminates, a carpeted gangway led to the water edge. From early morning all was bustle. Militiamen, police officers and dress-coated city officials were seemingly self-multiplying. An address had been prepared and was being copied and commented upon. A programme of operations was being formed and circulated. The work of repainting and decorating the interior of the Colonial building was being prosecuted with redouble activity. At the time appointed for the arrival of the Prince, all men and things were in readiness for the display.

ARRIVAL OF PRINCE ARTHUR.

At 4 o'clock precisely Queen-street was lined with militia, strengthened musically by a band stationed on the wharf. The skies were blue, and the air was cool and refreshing. At least a dozen sentinels were on duty to signal the expected vessel. But four hours were to go by ere the Dart hove in sight. Five o'clock struck at all the steeples in the city, and the bells which should have been rung continuously from the moment the Prince landed, dwelt perhaps a second longer than usual on the fifth stroke and then relapsed into silence. At 6 o'clock the Dart had not been sighted, nor was she hailed until long after 7. Then her guns were heard, and her salute was answered. It was quite dark at the time and decidedly chilly. Many of the occupants of the sidewalks had lost patience, and had foregone the pleasure of beholding the Prince in preference to retiring without a comforting supper. But the officials had not deserted their respective posts, and, with a very few lanterns, were at hand to receive their guest.

ARTHUR ASHORE.

At 8 o'clock a small boat approached the wharf amid loud cheers, and Prince ARTHUR landed. The Mayor, THEOPHILUS DES BRISAY Esq., the Bishop of Charlottetown, Recorder LAWSON and a miscellaneous gathering of notabilities, clergymen and citizens greeted him, and vocally smoothed the way for him to an open carriage. Had not one of the least important members of the cortége bethought himself of firing a tar-torch and bearing it beside the vehicle, Prince ARTHUR might have been dragged to the Government House incognito. But, thanks to the inventiveness of the man alluded to, some light was had, and the cheers of a crowd that preceded, accompanied and followed the little procession were not addressed to an altogether invisible being. They sounded in the Prince's ears until he alighted at the Government House, and was separated from a rather shabby mob, that tracked his coach to the last, by a guard of honor from the militia and by the doors of the Manse. Within the pillared hall the Mayor and corporation, with a few officers of militia, faced the Prince and his two companions. The royal visitor was attired in a complete evening dress, and, although somewhat more self-possessed from the very outset of the ceremonies than he appeared to be at Halifax, seemed still a little embarrassed and rather fatigued. The aged Recorder read the address, and the Prince replied to it from a manuscript in the handwriting of a secretary, but adorned with his own signature. The contents of both documents have been transmitted to you by the telegraph, and were of the usual order of political importance and literary merit. After they had been made public, the Prince was left to himself for the night.

LEVEE AND OUT-OF-DOOR SCENES.

Prince ARTHUR quits Charlottetown tomorrow. During his two days' sojourn here, however, he will have been entertained to some purpose. Yesterday, of course, no public demonstration was made; but to-day he is being lionized to an unlimited extent. It rained quite heavily during the morning, but at noon the clouds had dispersed. The levee was first seen to. It might have been more numerously attended had not dress coats or a military uniform been looked for upon the back of each attendant; but it passed off happily, being characterized by the usual ingoing and outcoming of fashionably attired mankind and womankind, all radiant after a minute's basking in the sunlight of a princely smile. The Prince's interview with the people was far more satisfactory, however. Aware of his intention to look down upon the masses from the balcony of the Colonial Hall, the citizens filled the streets. In strict accordance with the programme, the royal visitor was driven through their midst in an open carriage and ushered to the conspicuous spot alluded to, whence he smiled on all for fully ten minutes, which were occupied by the spectators in continuous gazing and cheering. The out-door scenes were ended by the photographing of Prince ARTHUR under the main triumphal archway, five pictures being secured.

This evening, as the mail bearing this letter departs, the ball will begin. The price of tickets of admission has been fixed at £1; and participation in a series of dances commenced by a solemn quadrille, in which the Prince will figure, and also in a supper, are promised as an equivalent for the outlay. The affair will take place at the Colonial Hall, and promises to be very brilliant, spite of a rather menacing recollection of the past. When the Prince of WALES visited Charlottetown in 1860, I hear, a similar reunion was organized. The Committee of Arrangements, however, was ill fitted by practice for its task, and a tradition is still extant to the effect that a special meeting was held for the purpose of ascertaining whether it would not be advisable to pour the champagne intended for the Prince's private supper table into decanters. The question, I believe, was finally settled by leaving the wine in its gilt-topped flagons, but the ultimate acceptableness of the beverage was, for a few minutes, seriously endangered. The present Committee, I hope, will conform to precedent in this respect, at least, and thus insure the success of a gathering that will be the theme of conversation here for a whole year. F. A. S.

OBITUARY.

F. I. A. Boole.

FRANCIS I. A. BOOLE, so well known some years since as a prominent Democratic politician in this City, died yesterday at the Lunatic Asylum in Utica of softening of the brain. Mr. BOOLE's advent as an officeholder was as Councilman for a district located in the Eleventh Ward. He was subsequently elected Alderman from the same ward, and afterward held the position of City Inspector. While holding this last position he was nominated by Tammany Hall as a candidate for Mayor. The Republicans nominated ORISON BLUNT, while the Union Democracy and the McKeon Democracy nominated C. GODFREY GUNTHER. The contest was one of the most exciting ever experienced in a Mayoralty election in this City. Almost every one, except the select few who were well posted on the inner workings of the wirepullers, expected that Mr. BOOLE would be elected by a large majority, and that Mr. GUNTHER would be the last man in the race. But after this Mr. BOOLE's popularity ran down almost to zero, and he was legislated out of office as City Inspector, and the Board of Health, which was then created, assumed the duties and powers appertaining to the City Inspector's Department. Mr. BOOLE, from the effects of disappointed ambition and dissipation, soon became deranged, and was placed in the Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum, where he remained until recently, when he was sent to the asylum in Utica.

Mr. BOOLE leaves a wife and two grown-up daughters. Mr. CHARLES E. LOEW (County Clerk) and Mrs. BOOLE started for Utica yesterday, and will bring on the remains of Mr. BOOLE to this City to-day. Mr. GEORGE W. ROOME, the Keeper of the City Hall, has received instructions to display the flags at half-mast from the City Hall to-day.

Ex-Sheriff Curtis, of Queens County.

JOSEPH CURTIS, Esq., Ex-Sheriff of Queens County, died very suddenly yesterday morning, at his residence in the village of Hempstead, after an illness of about an hour. In addition to the office of Sheriff, he had previously held a Deputy Sheriff of the County, and was one of the most prominent Democratic politicians in the county. He was about 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children.

BROWN UNIVERSITY.

Commencement Day Reunion of the Alumni—The Annual Dinner—Speeches of President Caswell, Governor Seth Padelford, Mayor Clark, Hon. Lafayette S. Foster, Judge B. F. Thomas and Others.

From Our Special Correspondent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Thursday, Sept. 2, 1869.

One of the pleasantest features of Commencement Day at Brown is the religious regularity with which the old graduates, who have spread their sheepskins to the breeze and sailed away on their life voyages from year to year, any time during the past century, return on this annual occasion to the old haven. The ancient University, which from her magnificent site upon the hill-top, lords it over the town and the surrounding country, has also her seat in the loyal breasts of all of her old children, who respond with alacrity to the yearly invitation to assemble at her generous board. It is to them a delightful occasion, but not unmingled with sadness. From year to year drop away familiar faces never to be seen again amid these scenes, and the older classes are represented sometimes by a single white-haired and bowed survivor or have been swept away altogether. The hand of the destroyer has been busy during the past year, and the dead are thus enumerated: JOHN FOWLER WILLIAMS, Class of 1814, died Oct. 13, 1868; GEO. COLE, Class of 1834, died July 14, 1868; Rev. FREDERIC WILEY, Class of 1847, died July 21, 1868; CALEB EDMUND THAYER, Class of 1865, died Aug. 27, 1868; JOTHAM LINCOLN, Class of 1836, died Sept. 4, 1868; JONAS DARIUS SLEEPER, Class of 1840, died Sept. 9, 1868; THOMAS POWER, Class of 1808, died Sept. 9, 1868; MANNING BELCHER, Class of 1814, died September, 1868; WILLIAM MASON HALE, Class of 1841, died Oct 8, 1868; WILLIAM READ STAPLES, Class of 1817, died Oct. 19, 1869; PARIS JENCKES TILLINGHAST, Class of 1870, died Nov. 24, 1868; WM. EVERETT JILLSON, Class of 1846, died Nov. 27, 1868; JOHN MASON WILLIAMS, LL.D., sole survivor of the Class of 1801, died Dec. 28, 1868; HENRY AUGUSTUS ROGERS, Class of 1820, died Jan. 7, 1869; GEORGE HEDDING FILLMORE, Class of 1847, died Feb. 4, 1869; SWAN LYMAN POMEROY, D. D., Class of 1820, died March 17, 1869; GEORGE LEONARD BARNES, Class of 1816, died March 27, 1869; ESEK ALDRICH, Class of 1818, died May 24, 1869; JONATHAN EARLE ARNOLD, Class of 1832, died June 2, 1869; THOMAS TOLMAN, Class of 1811, died June 20, 1869; EDWARD DORR GRIFFIN PALMER, M. D., Class of 1839, died June 29, 1869; ABRAM VAN BUREN, Class of 1843, died July 28, 1869; Rev. NICHOLAS POWER TILLINGHAST, Class of 1837, died Aug. 7, 1869; EBENEZER STONE, M. D., Class of 1820, died Aug. 15, 1869.

There are, however, still living 1,351 of the 2,376 graduates who, previous to the present year, have gone forth from the walls of the University, and of these an unusually large delegation attended the Commencement exercises yesterday, and at their conclusion accompanied the President, Faculties and students to an immense tent erected on the College Campus, where, at 2 P.M., they sat down to a bounteous repast. At its conclusion,

Rev. Dr. ALEXIS CASWELL, President of Brown University, called the assemblage to order, and briefly welcomed the Alumni. He dwelt upon the great social benefit of such gatherings as these. In the college career friendships were formed, often productive of the highest good, and lasting through life. They were bound together by a strong and indissoluble tie, and whatever animosities might have sprung up between them in the turmoil and troubles of the great battle of life, were all laid aside here. They came there as one family to talk about the prospects and the history of their Alma Mater. The institution was now entering upon the second century of its useful career. It had constantly grown in wealth and importance, and they looked forward to a further development of its resources to result, not from the efforts of any one man, but from the aggregate labors of all the Alumni. A true university ought to meet the demands of the advancing age. They wanted to give a fostering hand in this College to every great work, and to have their representatives in every field; and they had them there. [Applause.] He adverted to the importance of continuing study after leaving college, and concluded by saying that Brown University was now in better condition to do her work well than she ever was before. He proposed as a sentiment, "The State of Rhode Island," and in response, Governor SETH PADELFORD, of Rhode Island, said very briefly that he hoped this institution would long be permitted to flourish and to do its work in moulding the rising generations.

GEORGE L. CLARK, Mayor of Providence, was next called out by some complimentary remarks from the President. He said that the City of Providence could never be indifferent to the prosperity of the University. The relations of the College and of the city had always been of the most cordial character. The institution was a great advantage to the city. Property was safer and life more secure by reason of the existence here of an institution of high aims and noble character. It exerted both a direct and unconscious influence for good on the community, which was felt in the public schools, in the industries and in social relations. He felt that every man of culture existed for the good of the community. He concluded by giving the sentiment, (which was duly honored in cold water, the beverage of the occasion,) "The Union of the Industries and the Culture of the Schools, Producing a Harmonious Whole."

Hon. LAFAYETTE S. FOSTER, of Connecticut, was next called upon. After expressing his thanks for the compliment, he said there was but one thought in his head suggested by this occasion, and it was not a convivial, mirthful nor cheerful one. The gentlemen of the medical faculty who were present might censure him, perhaps, for introducing such a thought after dinner, on the ground that it would impede the digestion. However, he would nevertheless present the idea, and it was this: How very peculiar and weighty is the responsibility of this country at the present time with regard to education. In common with all other countries, we had in the United States the responsibility of educating the youth that grew up among us; but that was the least of our responsibilities with regard to education. But a short time before the class now graduating entered college, 4,000,000 of people had been set free in our midst and made citizens in a single day. These 4,000,000 of people were ignorant in the extreme. It was through no fault of theirs. The law compelled it. We had 4,000,000 of people thrown upon us in a day to be educated or to remain a very dangerous class in the community. No nation ever before had such a responsibility thrown upon it. Then there were the emigrants every day landed upon our Atlantic shores. Some of them were enlightened and cultivated, but the great mass were very ignorant, and needed education to fit them to be citizens with safety to the life of the Republic. What an addition was this to the ordinary responsibilities of a country with regard to the education of its people! This was not all. Look at the Pacific coast. Hordes of Asiatics were leaving their own shores and coming to our Western borders. These immigrants would soon be counted by millions, as totally uneducated as regards fitness for assuming the duties of citizenship as if they were children unborn. Our colleges must be considered as fortresses to defend our people against the ignorance found in our midst. This, their old Alma Mater, they must consider a fortress where all that may elevate, defend, perpetuate our institutions should be taught, so that its influence may extend to the remotest parts of our country. [Great applause.] We needed such fortresses more than we needed structures for defence against a foreign foe. We were in more danger of being overwhelmed by the ignorance of our own people than by an enemy from abroad. Our institutions were based upon the intelligence and morals of the people. Unless our people were educated to a proper intellectual and moral standard, our Government would not last. There was no doubt about this among intelligent people. How imperative, then, was the duty to see that all our seats of learning were doubled in their force and increased in their efficiency. This was a most important thing to be brought to the attention of the people. The exercises of this day were enough to give heart and hope that this institution would not be found wanting in the work that she had to do. He rejoiced that they were sending forward an advance guard to prevent our being overrun by ignorance and, he was going to say, by barbarism. [Applause.]

Judge B. F. THOMAS, of Massachusetts, being toasted, made an eloquent response. He said he was thinking in the cars, as he came to attend this convocation, of the reasons why he did not always come to Commencement at Brown. One reason was the danger of being called upon to speak when he had nothing to say. Another was that the prevailing feeling of such a day with him was one of sadness. It was not merely that the place that once knew them now knew them no more. It was not alone the loss of absent comrades that dashed their spirits. The real feeling of sadness was that here they were brought into the presence of their early hopes and aspirations; that they felt in their presence that all of life was a failure, all seeming victory defeat, all apparent riches but nakedness and poverty; that they stood again on the shore of the great ocean of truth and knowledge, feeling that there were some little inlets that they were tolerably familiar with, while the boundless sea itself lay unexplored before them. One cause of this sadness was a sense of the futility of the attempt of the finite to measure the infinite. The reason of their failure to make more progress toward doing so was that the education of the University ends where it should begin. Men were sent out from our colleges into the great world unarmed for the battle of life and unable to bear the weight of armor. They should be trained for the higher duties of life by a more thorough culture and preparation. The one thing wanted for the battle of life was the advance of the standard. [Applause.] The speaker dwelt upon the change in the positions which our colleges occupied in the community since he and President CASWELL were students. The crisis that the country had recently passed through left these institutions with new responsibilities. We had passed through eight years of suffering and sacrifice since the war broke out, yet who would be willing to blot out these eight years? If they could make the graves give up their dead; if all the waste spots made desolate by war could be made to bloom again, who would be willing to return to the age when the curse of slavery hung over us and fire and discord were impending? [Applause.] There never was more need of culture than now, after the war had ceased, to enable us to mould together and make homogeneous the various elements of our society. He went for the largest and most liberal education of all the people of all colors and of all sexes. Yet above this general culture there must be the advance guard of men devoted to science in its higher walks, asking not "what do the people want?" but "what is their highest good?" This University ought to be placed now as far above the plane of ordinary education as she was fifty years ago. With compliments to the institution and a tribute to FRANCIS WAYLAND, Professor WM. G. GODDARD and Professor ROMEO ELTON, Judge THOMAS closed amid prolonged applause.

Professor ROMEO ELTON, now of Exeter, England, formerly Professor of Greek at Brown University, was the next speaker. He dwelt upon the interest that he always felt in the College during his seventeen years' absence in England, and of his interest in the welfare of our country, for whose honor during the war he had contended in articles published in the London Eclectic Review and in various English newspapers. He adverted to the gratifying progress of liberal principles in England, and expressed his gratification at the efforts that are making to advance the standard of education at Brown University.

Professor JOHN L. LINCOLN, of Brown, being called on for a speech, responded by introducing the Glee Club of the Graduating Class, led by Mr. FRANK LAWTON. The club sang "Old Brown" with admirable effect.

Speeches were made by President J. B. ANGELL, of the University of Vermont; Dr. GEORGE W. SAMPSON, President of Columbian College, District of Columbia; Rev. FREDERICK DENISON, of Westerly, Rhode Island; JOHN DAGGETT, Esq., and President DODD, of Madison University, all expressing their interest in the welfare of their Alma Mater "Old Brown;" and then "Old Hundred" was sung, all present uniting in it, and the pleasant reunion was brought to a close. In the evening the levee at the house of the President was attended by an immense throng of the good people of Providence, and the friends of the students from everywhere else; and this closed the festivities of this memorable Commencement week at Brown. Election of Trustees—Time of Commencement Changed to June.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—At a meeting of the Corporation of the Brown University JOHN G. WHITTIER and ROWLAND G. HAZARD were elected to fill the vacancies in the Board of Trustees. It was voted to establish the Hazard Professorship of Physics. The time for holding the annual Commencement was changed from September to June.

SCOTTISH GAMES.

Annual Gathering of the Caledonian Club—Interesting Display of Muscular Exercises.

The thirteenth annual games of the New-York Caledonian Club were held at Jones' Wood yesterday, in the presence of a numerous and orderly assemblage of both sexes. A long and varied programme was prepared for the occasion, embracing many of the honored pastimes of "Auld Scotia" which have been celebrated in song and story. They were nearly all muscular and vigorous performances, in which strength, endurance and agility were represented to perfection. The members of the Club were attired in the characteristic Scottish dress, including vari-colored kilts, phillibegs, caps, &c. At 10 o'clock the exercises opened with the old-fashioned Scotch reel—a dance in which several Scotchmen heartily participated, keeping time to the shrill music of the bagpipes. This was followed by the putting of the heavy stone, (24 pounds,) which was thrown by ALEXANDER GRAHAM a distance of 30 feet 6 inches; PETER FRASER, of Montreal, 30 feet 4 inches; RICHARD JAPP, of Montreal, 29 feet 10 inches. Putting the light stone (18 pounds) came next, resulting as follows: P. FRASER, 35 feet 11 inches; ALEXANDER GRAHAM, 35 feet 4 inches; R. JAPP, 35 feet 3 inches. The third game was designated as "Tossing the Caber," and consisted of pitching a long and ponderous log of wood with the arms. This was accomplished by three men of powerful stature, namely, P. FRASER, (first,) WM. L. CAMPBELL, (second,) R. JAPP, (third.) After the termination of this feat, there was witnessed the standing jump, in which W. L. CAMPBELL made 9 feet 11½ inches; P. FRASER, 9 feet 9 inches; GEO. GOLDIE, 9 feet 6 inches. Following this was the throwing of the heavy stone, (21 pounds) which was a close contest between R. JAPP, (72 feet 4 inches,) P. FRASER, (71 feet 4 inches,) and W. L. CAMPBELL, (68 feet 1 inch.) Throwing the light hammer was somewhat similar to the preceding sport, the result being as follows: R. JAPP, 95 feet; P. FRASER, 92 feet 10 inches; W. L. CAMPBELL, 91 feet 3 inches. In the running jump, ANDREW SMEATON cleared 16 feet 10 inches; P. FRASER, one of his competitors, scoring 16 feet 1½ inches, the next nearest to his being W. L. CAMPBELL, 15 feet 8 inches. The broadsword dance was subsequently commenced, and made a very animated spectacle, the pipers playing the inspirating tune of "Gille Cullum" during the wild gyrations of the dancers. The most skill in this exercise was exhibited by L. D. ROBERTSON, (first,) ROBERT FORFER, (second,) and THOMAS MCGREGOR MUIR, (third.) Considerable interest was manifested in the running high leap, in which R. JAPP and P. FRASER, the two first contestants, both made exactly 5 feet 3 inches. A tie was also announced between J. T. ADDISON, of Boston, and A. SMEATON, their leap being 5 feet 1 inch. The next best leap was made by W. L. CAMPBELL, who was given credit for 4 feet 11 inches. The following is the result of several of the games not heretofore mentioned:

Short Race, (distance 100 yards.)—1. R. JAPP; 2. JOHN HALLIDAY; 3 P. FRASER.

Boys' Race.—1. MURDOCK MCPHAIL; 2. THOMAS MORRISON; 3. ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

Three-Legged Race.—This was a struggle to make a distance of 200 yards between men who were divided into pairs, each pair having their right and left leg bound together. The winners were: 1. HAMILTON and KEELER; 2. MELVILLE and MCEWEN; 3. POLLOCK and ROBINSON.

Vaulting with the Pole.—1. P. FRASER, 9 feet 9 inches; 2. W. L. CAMPBELL, 9 feet; 3. GEORGE GOLDIE, 8 feet 9 inches.

Long Race.—1. J. HALLIDAY; 2. HENRY ADAMS, of Pittston, Penn.; 3. R. JAPP.

Boys' Highland Fling.—1. GEORGE MITCHELL, Jr.; 2. DAVID KNOX; 3. JAMES KNOX.

Walking Match.—1. FRANCIS DYKES; 2. JAMES KIRKLAND; 3. WILLIAM DEANS.

Standing High Leap.—G. GOLDIE, 4 feet 4 inches; W. L. CAMPBELL, 4 feet 3 inches; P. FRASER, 4 feet 1 inch.

Long Race, (one mile.)—1. —— FITZGERALD; 2. HENRY ADAMS; 3. THOMAS ROGERS, of Dobb's Ferry.

Highland Fling.—This was danced to the tune of "Brace of Tullymet," performed on the bagpipes. The successful competitors were: 1. L. D. ROBERTSON; 2. J. KENNEDY; 3. JOHN FORFER.

Sack Race.—1. D. MELVILLE; 2. JAMES MAIR, of Philadelphia; 3. ROBERT HENDERSON.

Hitch and Kick.—G. GOLDIE, 8 feet 10 inches; P. FRASER, 8 feet 6 inches; ROBERT HAMILTON, 8 feet.

Hurdle Race.—1. WILLIAM POLLOCK; 2. P. FRASER; 3. ROBERT HAMILTON.

Boys' Hurdle Race.—1. WILLIAM POLLOCK; 2. WILLIAM GOWORIE; 3. JOHN BUCHANAN.

Hop, Step and Jump.—1. JAMES BONTHORNE, 38 feet; 2. P. FRASER, 37 feet 11 inches; 3. A. SMEATON, 36 feet 9 inches. The games concluded about 6 o'clock. Among the judges who acted on the occasion were Chief KERR, of the Boston Club; Chief MATHAM, of the Brooklyn Club; Colonel WM. MONIES, of the Scranton Club; JAMES BRYDEN, of the Pittston Club; ROBERT HARVEY, of Chicago; THOMAS FLANDERS and JAMES MCCLELLAN, of the New-York Club, and D. KENNEDY.

In the evening the Sons of Scotland met at the Caledonia Club Rooms, in Sullivan-street, when prizes of various kinds were distributed among the victorious contestants in the annual games.

INCIDENTALS.

The Hartford Courant says there was considerable frost in that vicinity on Wednesday morning; and although no serious damage was done the standing tobacco crop, the cultivators were very lively during the day cutting and gathering in from the fields, in order to be on the safe side.

The Washington Republican of yesterday says that the President has appointed WALTER E. GRESHAM, of Indiana, United States District Judge, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge MCDONALD, of Indianapolis.

JAMES T. CLOSE, a Republican member elect of the House of Delegates of Virginia, died of cancer of the stomach, at his residence near Arlington, on Wednesday morning. He was of Northern birth, but had resided in Virginia for the last twelve or fifteen years.

Governor HARVEY, of Kansas, has promised to attend the National Capital Convention in St. Louis, and to appoint a strong delegation to represent his State. Governor GEARY, of Pennsylvania, has declined to appoint delegates, and we are told by a St. Louis paper that "his response would seem to be not in favor of removal until the national debt is paid."

GAIL HAMILTON'S "model conductor" has left the railroad and is to ascertain whether he can keep a hotel in Cincinnati.

The semi-annual meeting of the National Academy of Science commenced at Northampton, Mass., on Tuesday. Papers were read by Professor ARNOLD GUYOT and Professor WOLCOTT GIBBS, of Cambridge.

Dr. FRANKLIN's fund of £1,000, which he willed to Boston in 1791, and expected to increase to £131,000 in a hundred years, amounted to only $133,493 36 on the 1st of January last, and at this rate of increase will not reach that amount at the appointed time. Dr. FRANKLIN directed that it should be loaned in small sums to young married artificers; that £100,000 should be expended for public works in 1891, and the remainder continue on interest another hundred years, when a portion was to go to the city and some £3,000,000 to the State.

The Mayor and one of the citizens of Fulton, Ill., have had a little contest, in which they at first confined their demonstrations to alternating laying down and tearing up a sidewalk on successive days. Finally the Mayor assaulted the citizen, and then went before a Justice and pleaded guilty. He was fined $5, which a correspondent of the Chicago Times says was a deserved rebuke for tyrannical overbearing, browbeating and official all-sufficiency.

The Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel is again urging the abolition of the office of Vice-President. In case of the death of the President it would have the Secretary of State act as President until a new election can be held. It would have the people vote directly for President, and the Senate elect its own President, to serve for two years.

The Knoxville Press & Herald says that CALVIN LANGSTON, who is in jail in that city under sentence of death, convicted of the murder of two women and a boy, and who has appealed to the Supreme Court, is fast becoming hopelessly insane. He imagines that the victims are continually around him, and always upbraiding him for his horrible cruelty to them.

The New-Orleans Times says that long trains of Texas cattle, with keen, long horns, stalwart frames and rather skittish ways, may be seen almost daily moving northward on the Jackson Railroad.

The official vote of Kentucky at the August election, as declared from the office of the Secretary of State, is as follows: For State Treasurer, JAMES W. TATE, Democrat, 82,617; E. RUMSEY WING, Republican, 24,759; for the School tax; 78,208; against it, 24,275.

The old men of Portland, Me., whose age ranged from 65 to 92, had an excursion and clambake on Tuesday. They amused themselves and created an appetite by leap-frog and such amusements, and after dinner they organized themselves into an "Aged Brotherhood."

Boston estimates the capital employed in the hide and leather business in Massachusetts at $20,000,000. The amount of sales of leather, &c., in Boston last year reached $35,000,000, and during the same period about 720,000 foreign hides were imported into Boston.

The citizens of Pittsburg, Penn., decided by a majority of 4,416 in a total vote of only 5,222, that they were not yet ready to be taxed to lay out and support a public park.

The Peabody Library at Post Mills, (Thetford,) Vt., has just received from GEORGE PEABODY a large oil portrait of himself. The position is standing with full front and full face view. The right hand is thrust into the breast of the buttoned coat, the left holds a paper on which may be read, in imitation of Mr. PEABODY's handwriting: "To the Chairman of the Peabody Library, Post Mills Village, Vermont, GEORGE PEABODY."

SAMUEL SCOTT, of Dayton, has been selected as the Temperance candidate for Governor of Ohio, in place of J. E. INGERSOLL, declined. In accepting the nomination he says that for the last twenty years he has advocated the principles of prohibition, and that he believes the time has "fully come" when temperance men should vindicate this doctrine at the ballot-box.

A new professorship has been established in Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, supported by a gift of $25,000 from THOMAS BEAVER, Esq., of Danville. The incumbent of the chair is to have charge of the Department of Biblical Literature. Rev. Dr. DASHIELL, the new President, has assumed his position, and the munificent centenary collection makes the endowment of the College now about a quarter of a million.

WASHINGTON.

Encouraging Reports from the South—Crop Prospects in the West—The Proposed Bureau for Printing Government Money—Seizure of Tobacco—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The little excitement of yesterday died away with the departure of the President last evening, and Washington to-day fell back to its Summer stupidity. The White House, so thronged yesterday morning, was deserted, the Departments were quiet, there were no arrivals at the hotels, and the small number of politicians whom the President brought here took their departure on the morning trains. Washington news and gossip was at a premium. The people here, for want of better to do, amuse themselves by speculating on the probability of being able to get up an International Exhibition in 1871, and of inducing the Oxfords to come to row with the Harvards on the Potomac about the same time. Business men complain of dull times, and every one is sighing for the December meeting of Congress.

The official figures at the Treasury Department show that the South has more money at the present time than any other agricultural portion of the country, North, East or West. This state of affairs is not spasmodic, but is likely to continue, with the prospect that it will be even bettered in the Fall. The crops in that section are, as a general thing, excellent, and as the South is not indebted to the North in anything near the amount in which it always was prior to the war, the process of accumulation there may be said to have actually begun.

PROSPECTS IN THE WEST.

The West is not very loudly complaining of a want of money, and if the present condition of things last it is not very probable that we shall hear much of a monetary outcry from that session next Winter. It is estimated here that Western farmers have money enough to move their crops. The agricultural feeling of the country is said to be in favor of waiting for a rise in prices, which will, of course, have the effect of lessening a demand for money for immediate use. If there should be a large export demand the condition of things will be altered, but as matters stand now, the situation is far better than was anticipated at the beginning of the season.

PRINTING THE GOVERNMENT MONEY.

There is a loud outcry for the establishment or restoration of a bureau for printing the United States legal-tender currency, under the immediate supervision of the Treasury Department in this city. The change may be a very desirable one, but, independent of the consideration of greater efficiency in the service, there is another side to the question which it may be well to consider, and which has occupied the attention of prominent officials. As the law stands at present, the Secretary of the Treasury has sole control of the printing of the Government money, and is responsible to no one except to the President and Congress. The question is asked if an immense bureau, having charge of making paper, engraving the plates, and printing the securities used or issued by the Government, should grow up in the Treasury Department at Washington, what guarantee would the public have against the grossest abuses and greatest frauds when the chances of politics should throw the administration of affairs into the hands of a party which may be easily conceived to exist any time. The Secretary of the Treasury derives his authority for contracting for this work from an appropriation act of 1866, but it is entirely discretionary with him to have it done in the Department or outside of it.

SOUTHERN PENSION AGENCIES.

The Commissioner of Pensions has appointed a board, of which his chief clerk is at the head, to visit the various pension agencies in the South and investigate the claims of those colored soldiers who are on the list for pensions, with a view to resume the payment of pensions to that class of soldiers in the Southern States.

SEIZURE OF TOBACCO.

Information has been received here that JOHN CRANE, the Collector of the Fifth North Carolina District, has seized a large amount of tobacco, valued at $50,000, the tax on which was sought to be evaded by the use of counterfeit stamps. The tobacco has been placed in the custody of the United States Marshal to await the action of the Courts.

THE ALLEGED CRUELTY ON THE PAWNEE.

The particulars of the alleged cruelty on board the United States ship Pawnee, which returned about a month ago from the South Atlantic Squadron, have been already published, as well as the fact that a Court of Inquiry had been ordered at Portsmouth, N. H. The evidence taken by this Court has been forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy, and it is believed that a Court-martial will be ordered immediately.

THE ROBERTS CUBAN LETTER.

A letter has recently appeared in the newspapers professing to have been furnished for publication by a prominent Cuban patriot, dated Washington, Aug. 22, and purporting to have been written by Señor ROBERTS, the Spanish Minister, to the Captain-General of Cuba, and intercepted. In this letter Señor ROBERTS is represented as giving information about the status of the gunboats now building in this country for the Spanish Government, stating that belligerent rights will not be considered in haste, but that the probable future action of this Government will be in favor of the Cubans, &c. Mr. ROBERTS, under his own signature, to-day, says the letter has not a word of truth in it, and that "the document itself is a mere awkward forgery."

ROBT. A. HAGGERTY & CO. No. 31 Pine-st., New-York, will sell on TUESDAY, Sept. 14, 1869, at the

EXCHANGE SALESROOM, No. 111 BROADWAY, (Trinity Building,) New-York, at 12, o'clock M., the following described valuable coal property, viz.:

This estate, known as "Branchdale," is situated in Schuylkill County, Penn., near Pottsville, and contains 689 acres and 100 perches.

There are excellent railroad outlets to market—distance to Philadelphia by rail, 102 miles; by canal, 111 miles; and by the new road now in process of construction, the "Union Central"—being constructed by the Lehigh Valley, Morris and Essex, and New-Jersey Central Railroads—will have direct communication with New-York City, 127 miles.

A part of the estate is used for farming purposes, and the southern portion well timbered, (heavy,) suitable for mining purposes.

The whole extent of the property is underlaid throughout by all the anthracite coal veins of the region, both red and white ash, and twenty and a half millions (20,500,000) tons can be made available. Only a small portion of the coal has been mined out, and the best and most valuable veins remain untouched.

There is an opening on the celebrated "Diamond" vein, with the slope sunk fifty yards in good coal.

This colliery has two steam-engines and boilers, pumps, railroad iron, cars and all appurtenances necessary to complete it.

There is a breaker, with engine, boiler, rollers, shutes, screens, fan-houses, &c., in perfect working order, awaiting the completion of the slope.

There is a large and substantial mansion-house, thirty miners' houses, two good frame-houses for foremen, and three stables, making in all thirty-six buildings, exclusive of breaker, engine and fan houses.

For an examination of a carefully-prepared brief of title to this property, from original surveys and patent from the State, map, and for further particulars, in detail, also, for TERMS OF SALE, apply to the auctioneers,

A PACIFIC RAILWAY GOLD LOAN

We beg leave to announce that we have accepted the agency of the

KANSAS PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

For the sale of its

New Seven Per Cent. Thirty-Year Gold Loan, Free of Tax.

This Loan amounts to $6,500,000,

First Mortgage Land-Grant and Sinking Fund Bonds,

secured upon the extension of the Railway from near Sheridan, in Kansas, to Denver, Colorado, a distance of 237 miles, of which twelve miles are completed, and the rest is under construction. It is also a mortgage upon the rolling stock and franchise of this first-class railway now running through the State of Kansas.

And in successful operation for 437 miles west of the Missouri River, and earning already enough to meet all of its expenses and existing obligations, besides

More than the Interest upon this new Loan.

In addition to this the bonds are also secured by a first mortgage of the Government Land Grant of three million acres, extending in alternate sections on either side of the track, from the 394th mile post in Kansas to Denver. The proceeds of the sale of these lands are to be invested by the Trustees in the 7 per cent. Bonds them selves up to 120, or in United States Bonds as

A Sinking Fund for the redemption of the Bonds.

The lands embrace some of the finest portions of the magnificent Territory of Colorado, including a coal field and pinery. The Company also holds as an asset another tract of

Three Millions of Acres in the State of Kansas, and although not pledged as a security for this loan, their possession adds largely to the Company's wealth and credit. We estimate the Value of the Company's Property, Covered by This Mortgage, at $23,000,000, Net, While the Loan is Merely $6,500,000.

The bonds have

THIRTY YEARS TO RUN,

from May 1, 1869, and will pay

SEVEN PER CENT. INTEREST IN GOLD,

semi-annually, on May 1 and Nov. 1, and are

Free From Government Taxation,

the Company paying the tax.

The Principal of the loan is made Payable, in Gold, in the City of New-York, but each coupon will

Be Payable in Frankfort, London, or New-York, at the option of the holder, without notice, at the following rates:

On $1,000 Bond in New-York...$35 (gold) each half year.
On $1,000 Bond in London.....£7 5s. 10d. each half year
On $1,000 Bond in Frankfort...87 florins and 30 kreutzers each half year.

The agents of the loan, before accepting the trust, had the condition of the road, and the country through which it runs, carefully examined. They are happy to give the loan an emphatic indorsement as a

FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

in every respect, perfectly sure, and in some essentials even Better than Government Securities.

The bonds will be sold for the present at 96, and accrued Interest, both in Currency,

the agents reserving the right to advance the rate.

The attention of investors is invited to these well-secured bonds, which we recommend as one of the most profitable investments in the market.

Gold and Government Securities taken in payment at their market value, without commissions.

TANNER & CO.

SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD FIRST MORTGAGE CONVERTIBLE BONDS

OF THE

Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad Company.

OF ILLINOIS,

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD AT THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, NEW-YORK. COUPONS PAYABLE APRIL AND OCTOBER.

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

The Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad, upon whose property these bonds are issued, is now in process of construction, its termini being the Cities of Danville and Pekin, both in Illinois. The length of the road is 117 5-100 miles, its capital stock $3,000,000. The grading, bridging, and all the work necessary to perfect a complete roadway has been already done, and the whole line is ready for the rails. These are rapidly being laid down, and a portion of the road is now in successful operation. The whole road will be completed early the coming Autumn.

These bonds are convertible into stock at par at the option of the holder, and may be registered in the name of the owner at any time if desired. The total amount of bonds is limited to $2,000,000. The security offered is, as we shall show, the very best. Already sums nearly equal to the total amount of the bonds to be issued have been expended on the road. The bonds, averaging less than $18,000 per mile, are secured by a first mortgage on the whole road and entire property of the Company. The road runs east and west, on the line of the principal and oldest emigrant wagon road in the State, passing through several populous towns and cities, and the richest agricultural district in Illinois—in a word, through the garden of the Garden State. Its local business alone will suffice to make it a first-class paying road, while, with its connections with many principal lines, its through trade must be such as to make it one of the most profitable in the country.

The road will be consolidated with the line from Danville to Indianapolis, making a line of 210 miles. At Indianapolis connection will be made with all the through lines to New-York and Baltimore; at Danville with the Toledo, Wabash and Western. In fact, the road will form a main link in the direct communication of the principal Atlantic cities with southern Illinois, with Keokuk and Burlington, Iowa, and thence with Omaha and the Pacific.

It will complete a direct line from Boston to Peoria, Keokuk, Burlington, Omaha and the far West, via Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, and the Bellefontaine Railroad to Indianapolis and Danville, or via Toledo and Wabash and Western Road.

It will form the most direct line from New-York to the same points West via the New-York Central, Lake Shore and Bellefontaine Roads, to Indianapolis and Danville; or via the Erie, Atlantic and Great Western, to Dayton, Ohio; and via Indiana Central, to Indianapolis, Danville, Bloomington, &c., as well as from Philadelphia, via the Pennsylvania Central to Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Columbus, Dayton and Indianapolis.

It will form an important link in the communication of Baltimore and the South with the Great West, the Northwest and the Pacific via Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to Parkersburg, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Danville and Peoria.

Thus, with the combined advantages of a certainty of a remunerative local business and a through business, which, as a connecting link to so many diverging and principal lines, it must necessarily have, it is reasonable to presume that the earnings of this road must exceed, in proportion to its length, those of any other railroad in Illinois. The following table shows the earnings of some of the principal railroads in Illinois:

Railroads.	Miles road.	Earnings per mile.
Chicago, Alton and St. Louis.....	280	$13,900
Chicago and Northwestern.....	1,152	11,670
Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific	410	10,012
Toledo, Wabash and Western...	521	7,261
Illinois Central.....	708	10,115

It is safe to estimate the receipts of the Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad for the first year at $12,000 per mile, or on 117.05 miles, $1,404,000.

FIRST YEAR.

Set aside as Sinking Fund.....	10,000— 908,300
Leaving a net profit over interest and expenses.....	$496,300

Or over 16 per cent. for dividends on the capital stock the first year of its operations. Without doubt, a progressive increase thereafter, each year, would be the result. The geographical location of the road is alone sufficient to convince all of its great value and usefulness.

The stock of the Rock Island and the Illinois Central, the Chicago and Alton, Burlington and Quincy Roads, are all selling at from above par to nearly 200, while none of them are more favorably located, and the competition with either is no much greater than this can have. There is no reason why the stock of this road shall not sell as high as either of the above. Hence the privilege of converting these bonds into stock at this Company at par any time desired greatly increases their value.

After having personally and thoroughly examined this road, we accepted the agency for negotiating its bonds. We now offer them at 90 and accrued interest in currency. With the utmost confidence we recommend them as a reliable and safe security and profitable investment.

At the present price they pay 10 per cent. currency—over 45 per cent. more than the same amount invested in Five-twenty Bonds—besides the advantage of being free from tax, and the prospect of a speedy advance in the stock of the road on completion, into which they may be converted.

Government Bonds and Gold received at their market value in exchange without commission. Bonds forwarded by express free of charge.

Full particulars furnished by the undersigned, financial agents of the Company.

United States of Colombia—Revolution in Magdalena—The Presidential Elections—Celebrations in Panama—Cuban Officers on Their Way to Washington.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1869.

From Bogota, the capital of this republic, no mail has been received since the departure of the Arizona, on the 18th inst. There are rumors of a revolutionary movement in contemplation in the State of Magdalena, and some eighty of the national troops, who have been stationed at Panama for some time past, embarked on board the royal mail steamer Nera, on the 24th inst., for Santa Martha, en route for Magdalena.

By the way of Buga, in the State of Canca, we have dates to the 23d July. SALGA has carried four of the States, but he must get the fifth to gain the Presidential chair. The Legislature of Canca was in session, and would probably soon cast its vote for MOSQUERA. It is probable that all the other States will vote for MOSQUERA, except, perhaps, Antioqui. This important State is in favor of neither candidate, and may not vote at all. No one can yet predict the result.

THE BANK OF PANAMA.

Sunday, the 15th of August, was a lively day in Panama. The inauguration of "The Bank of Panama" opened the day. The ceremonies took place in the presence of his Excellency, the President of this State, the foreign Consuls, and many other dignitaries. Mr. KELLEY, in behalf of the bank, delivered a speech, which was eloquently responded to by President CORROSO, after which everybody enjoyed the refreshments. The Bank of Panama is now in working operation; it will undoubtedly prove of great benefit to the commerce of the Isthmus.

NAPOLEON'S DAY.

Next in order came the celebration of "Napoleon's Day." The following account is taken from the Panama Mail:

"Sunday last afforded the occasion to exhibit that enthusiasm which Frenchmen know so well how to display. It was "Napoleon's Day"—the anniversary of the birth of the first NAPOLEON, whose name to the present day is not divested of its original prestige.

The occasion was celebrated with considerable spirit, on the night of the 14th M. LAMARQUE gave a splendid ball, at which a large number of foreigners and natives attended. It was an entertainment worthy of the occasion, and the hospitable host and hostess. As might be expected the gay and festive scene, which was commenced on the 14th, was continued on the auspicious morning, and did not terminate till near the dawn of morning.

The day opened pleasantly, of course. At the French Consulate the tri-colored flag was displayed, as well as at several private dwellings. At M. LEBLANC's there was a profusion of bunting arranged with true French grace. The entrance to the Consulate was decorated with cocoanut boughs, so was the Aspinwall Hotel. And as the accommodating sun made way for it, there was an extensive illumination, Chinese lamps being brought into requisition by the Consul, the Aspinwall Hotel, the Grand Hotel, M. LAMARQUE, HIGAL, and, though last not least, the enthusiastic LEBLANC, Mr. Understood it was not the eye alone that was feasted, and although the public ear drank deep draughts of Colombian music, draughts of another kind, and perhaps not less exhilarating, were indulged in. The flowing bowl was everywhere,'—before breakfast at M. LEBLANC'S, where among his guests, seen in his Excellency the President and suite; later in the day, and all day, at the French Consulate, and at convenient intervals at the Grand and Aspinwall hotels. The military band was in attendance for a considerable period at the French Consulate, and 'discoursed' its usual 'sweet music.' Among the visitors to M. LE VASSEUR were CHAS. WILTHEW, Esq., H. B. M.'s Consul; Dr. O. M. LONG, U. S. Consul, and 'Señor LA FUENTE, Consul for Peru, and a large number of the most respectable native and foreign residents. The flags of the different nations represented here were displayed at the respective Consulates in honor of the day."

The Panama Mail is the new journal to which your correspondent has before alluded. The first number came out on the 18th inst. ISAAC LAWTON, Esq., is the editorial manager. He is an able writer, and has had a large experience in the profession. Now the only competing English publication on the isthmus is the Panama Star & Herald. The United States sloop-of-war Jamestown sailed from Panama for the Feejee Islands on the 21st inst. The Panama Star & Herald of the 19th says:

"We regret that we are soon to lose the United States sloop-of-war Jamestown from our harbor. During their permanence in these waters the Commander and officers have gained for themselves the esteem and respect of all who met the pleasure of becoming acquainted with them, and the crew leave behind them a well-earned reputation for sobriety and orderly conduct, and they all take with them the best wishes for a safe and pleasant cruise, which will probably extend to nearly a year before the ship again gets back to this coast.

The Jamestown goes first to the Feejee Islands, then to the Marshall, Caroline and Seniavin Islands, lying a few degrees north of the equator and in 158 degrees east longitude. The object of the cruise is to show the United States flag in these unfrequented seas, look after the interests of such Americans as may be settled or trading in either of the groups, and to extend to them such assistance or protection as they may require. After visiting the islands, the Jamestown is ordered to return to the coast of South America.

The following is a list of officers attached to the United States sloop-of-war Jamestown:

W. T. Truxtun, Commander, commanding; C. L. Huntington, Lieutenant-Commander, executive officer; William Welch, Master; Asa Walker, Jacob W. Miller, James M. Miller, Andrew Dunlap, P. T. Cunningham, Ensigns; E. R. Denby, Surgeon; E. D. Payne, Post Assistant Surgeon; George E. Watkins, Paymaster; H. C. Cochrane, First-Lieutenant Marine Corps; Andrew Milne, Boatswain; E. A. McDonald, Gunner, S. N. Whitehouse, Carpenter; Gilbert D. Macy, Sailmaker; R. E. Watkins, Paymaster's Clerk; Chas. W. Sinclair, Captain's Clerk."

The Royal Mail Company's steamer Nera arrived at Aspinwall on the 22d inst., bringing General F. J. CISNERAS and Colonel WM. CLARENCE TINKER, of the Cuban army, from Kingston, on the way to Washington. General CISNERAS will be remembered as the man in charge of the Perrit expedition and the Mary Lowell, and Colonel TINKER the man who left Key Westin May last in charge of the expedition steamer Salvador, which landed at Nuevas Grandes. Both these gentlemen enjoy the confidence of President CESPEDES, and have committed to their charge important documents and dispatches. From the seat of war they came to the Bay of St. Jago de Cuba. Passing through the enemy's lines, and coming within a mile of the city, they took a small boat, left the harbor, and went on board a vessel in the offing. At their request, the Captain of the vessel set sail. They were landed on the north coast of Jamaica. Colonel TINKER is the man who has so often been reported killed, but he still lives, and says the prospects of the insurgents are growing brighter daily.

AMBRASIO VALIENTE, Cuban Envoy to Peru, has arrived. He proceeds to New-York by the Alaska. He has been successful in securing the recognition of President CESPEDES' Government by Peru. On Sunday last he displayed the Cuban flag from the flag-staff of the Grand Hotel de Panama.

The Isthmus is tranquil, and as the rainy season draws to a close it is hoped business will improve. There is very little sickness here, even in the rainy season. Notwithstanding the recent newspaper howl about the deadly effect of a transit across from ocean to ocean, I cannot hear of a single instance where a passenger has suffered from the effects of riding over the railroad.

South America—Late News from Peru, Chili and Bolivia—Invasion of Guatemala—Honduras and Costa Rica.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1869.

The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Panama, Commander GRIERSON, arrived at this port on the 20th inst., bringing dates from the South coast as follows: from Valparaiso to the 3d; Caldera, 8th; Cobija and Iquique, 7th; Arica, 8th; Callao, 14th; and from Paita to the 16th inst.

PERU.

M. GAULDREE, the new French Minister Plenipotentiary to Peru, (Ex-Consul-General to New-York,) had arrived on the 31st ult., and was officially received by the President on the 4th inst. A treaty of commerce and navigation between Peru and the Kingdom of Italy has just been adjusted between the Italian Chargé d'Affaires and the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

The five days' festivities had gone off with extreme success, and the people were just recovering from their recreation. The Government, in view of the great success of the miniature exhibition at the School of Arts, had issued a decree for another on a much larger scale, to which the entire Republic will contribute, as also foreign manufacturers and artists. It is to be inaugurated on the 9th of December, next year. The Government grants a sum of 250,000 soles toward the erection of a splendid edifice for the purpose.

Dr. Don MIGUEL DE CARPIO, recently the Judge of the Supreme Court, died after a short illness at the age of 73. Dr. DE CARPIO was, during PEZET's Presidency, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and at one time was Minister for Foreign Affairs.

CHILI.

There is but little news from this Republic. Congress continues to be occupied with laws relating to electoral reform. The Senate has voted a sum of $20,000 for the traveling and other expenses of the Archbishop of Santiago and three Diocesan Bishops of the Republic, who intend to attend the Ecumenical Council at Rome. The amount of $20,000 has also been approved by the Senate, to be added in the estimates to the Department of Foreign Affairs, inasmuch as there is to be established a Legation of the first class in either Peru, the La Plata Republic or the United States.

The project to confer authority on the President to negotiate a loan, either within or beyond the Republic, for $4,000,000, and to issue bonds, the amortization fund of which is not to exceed two per centum per annum, has just been submitted to Congress. This amount is to be devoted toward the construction of the Chilian-Talcahuano Railroad, contracted for by the decree of May 28 last.

Two Conventions have been celebrated between the Ministers Plenipotentiaries of Chili and the Argentine Republic, the one a Postal Convention, and the other stipulating for the extradition of criminals, and have been respectively approved. A project to authorize the Executive to invite tenders for the construction of durable bridges across the Rivers Lontire, Maule, Putagan, Achicueño and various others crossing the highway between Turicé and Talca, and also across the River Itata, between Quirihua and Torné, has been presented to the Chambers. Traffic in these Southern districts being gradually interrupted during the Winter season, it is most likely that this project will be approved and forthwith carried out.

BOLIVIA.

Some of his Ministers having already departed from La Paz for Tarata and Cochabamba, President MALGARCJO intends to set out for those points on the 2d of August, accompanied by the army. There is no change in the political state of affairs, but it is impatiently looked for in the next meeting of Congress.

CENTRAL AMERICA—GUATEMALA.

The revolutionary leader, Don SERAPIO CRUZ, after his defeat in May last, succeeded in organizing in the State of Chiapas (Mexico) a new expedition to invade Guatemala, and on the 5th of July again entered upon its territory, and intrenched himself and army in the Sierra. The Government had sent out forces to pursue CRUZ.

HONDURAS.

President MEDINA has, in view of the revolution in the neighboring republic of Nicaragua, issued a decree calling to arms 1,000 men to watch the Nicaraguan frontier, to prevent any attempt against Honduras. Five hundred laborers are at work on the line of railroad between Cortes and Santiago.

COSTA RICA.

Peace reigns throughout this Republic. Congress met in session on the 29th July. The President in his message stated that the country was progressing favorably, and that every effort would be made to establish the railroad to the Atlantic Coast.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Union Republican General Committee—Efforts at Reorganization.

The Union Republican General Committee (Conservative) met at their headquarters, Twenty-third-street and Broadway, last evening, the President, JAS. W. BOOTH, in the chair.

A resolution was adopted instructing the Executive Committee to issue a call for primary meetings to elect delegates to the State Convention, to be held on the 29th inst.

A. J. PLUMB offered the following preamble and resolutions, which were adopted:

Whereas, This is the only regular and legitimate General Committee in the City of New-York, representing the Union Republican electors of the City; but,

Whereas, For the sake of harmony, we have repeatedly made propositions to the Twenty-second-street organization, for the purpose of reconciling, remodeling and purifying the party, with a view simply of securing an effective local organization, and,

Whereas, Our efforts have been unavailing, simply because a fair enrollment and consolidation would deprive certain ambitious and venal leaders of the Twenty-second-street organization of a lease of their power and the control of the patronage; and,

Whereas, A quarrel among the Twenty-second-street faction has resulted in the organization of a new General Committee, of which EDGAR KETCHUM is Chairman, thereby still further disintegrating and demoralizing the party; be it, therefore,

Resolved, That the Union Republican State Convention which is to meet on the 29th inst., is most earnestly requested to reorganize the Republican Party in the City and County of New-York, on such a fair and impartial basis, as will preclude in the future the disgraceful divisions which now distract and demoralize the party.

Resolved, That such reorganization of the party can only be effected by leaving the reënrollment to honest Republicans residing in the several Assembly Districts, and that any scheme by which the State Central Committee is to control a reconstruction of the party here, will be looked upon as a fraudulent attempt to subvert the rights of the legitimate Republican voters of the City.

Resolved, That the dispensation of the State and Federal patronage in this City has not met with the approval of the working Republicans thereof; that men who are not known in the Assembly districts in which they assume to live have been appointed to lucrative and honorable positions, to the exclusion of prominent and worthy workers; that, to remedy this evil alone, a reorganization is necessary, when those who are efficient and deserving may be suitably provided for, and the interlopers who, through the present disastrous divisions of the party, have managed to foist themselves upon the favor and consideration of the heads of departments, may be removed.

Mr. J. W. FARR offered a resolution that a committee of five be appointed by the Chair to take steps for bringing about a reënrollment and a reorganization of the party, and that the Committee have power to confer with other Republican organizations to effect that object. He said that this organization had always been in favor of union and harmony in the party, and had many times sought to promote that object, but without success. He believed that now was a propitious time to accomplish it. The Twenty-second-street organization was split up, and a new organization had been formed, and there appeared to be a general desire for union and harmony.

Mr. GEDNEY thought that the State Convention would attend to the matter, and that they had better wait and see what action would be taken at Syracuse.

Mr. PLUMB objected to the appointment of a committee unless it consisted of 21 members, one from each Assembly District.

A motion was here made and carried to lay the resolution on the table till the next meeting.

The Committee then adjourned to the 27th inst.

The Twenty-second-street Republicans—Preparations for the Syracuse Convention.

The Republican Committee of which Mr. J. V. GRIDLEY is President, met last evening at their rooms, corner of Twenty-second-street and Broadway.

The resignations of JOHN B. DINGLEDEIN and THOMAS SCANLAN, of the Twentieth Ward, were received and accepted.

The following resolutions were then read:

Whereas, A call has been issued by the State Central Committee inviting all electors who supported the Republican candidates, GRANT and COLFAX, and who now support the Administration to select delegates to meet [illegible]

Republican Fifth District Association.

The Republicans of the Fifth District met at No. 342 Spring-street last evening, Mr. CHAPMAN in the chair.

Addresses were made by the Chairman and others on the necessity for a reorganization of the Republican Party of this City, the placing of local politics on a purer and firmer basis, and the election to office of good and honest citizens.

The meeting adjourned subject to call.

Jacob Cohen Democratic Association.

The Democrats of the Sixteenth and Twentieth Wards, favoring Mr. JACOB COHEN's nomination to the office of Supervisor by the Nineteenth Ward Jacob Cohen Association, on the 21st July last, met last evening at Milliman's Hall, Twenty-sixth-street and Seventh-avenue, for the purpose of ratifying the same. The attendance was large. At 8 P. M. the President, Captain WISE, called the meeting to order and introduced the first speaker, Mr. MONTGOMERY, who made a speech and dwelt largely on the virtues and abilities of the nominee. He was followed by Captain SLOAN, who addressed the meeting at length on the probable resistance of Tammany to the nomination, but said they were prepared to fight her. Mr. HARRIS then read, amid great enthusiasm, resolutions in accordance with the object of the meeting and ratifying the nomination of Mr. COHEN, who was afterward presented to the assembly, and made a short address, stating that if he gained the day he would do his best to serve the people and not a class. Other speakers preceded the breaking up of the meeting, three cheers being given for Mr. COHEN on leaving.

THE RECENT LABOR CONVENTION.

Miss Anthony's Report as the Workingwomen's Delegate—Resolutions of Censure at her Rejection to be Drawn Up.

A special meeting of the Workingwomen's Protective Association was held last evening at Plimpton Hall, in Stuyvesant-street, for the purpose of hearing from Miss SUSAN B. ANTHONY, who was its delegate to the late Labor Congress in Philadelphia, a report of the doings of that body in connection with her rejection as a delegate.

At 8 o'clock Miss ANTHONY, being President of the Association, called the meeting to order and proceeded at once to the business for which it was convened. She had to-day, she said, been looking over the reports of her address in the Labor Congress as they appeared in the morning papers of this City, and was surprised to find that it was such a good one. She never complained of the Press in this particular, for the reporters invariably made for her better speeches than she made herself, and doubtless to-morrow's morning paper would prove no exception to this rule. It would be remembered that this Association, on the 12th of July last, appointed seven delegates to represent its interests in the Labor Congress; but when it came to the pinch, she, being as usual on the spot, was found to be the only one who could go. And having gone she became the target for the criticism of the workingmen's associations and of a portion of the Press. She stood it, however, and it was in her opinion a good thing that she was, of all the delegates, the one unfortunate enough to be in that Convention, for she had stood fire for twenty years, and was able to bear it. [Miss ANTHONY then entered into a history of the discussion which arose in the Congress when the Committee reported against admitting her, alleging as a reason that her credentials were informal, in not stating where the Society she represented was located. This discussion the readers of the TIMES are fully acquainted with, as it was given in our extended reports of the proceedings at the time. She then alluded to the vote in favor of admitting her—55 to 52—and its subsequent reconsideration.] This vote of fifty-five in her favor she considered as a triumph for the cause of woman. It was a magnificent vote. There were about 125 members in the Convention, but many "dodged," just as they do in Congress sometimes, when they are afraid to face a question on its final issue. The Press had been thundering away at the delegates to the effect that it would be a dangerous thing for them to admit SUSAN B. ANTHONY, because by so doing they would be giving their approval to the woman suffrage theory, of which she was known, all over the country, to be a staunch and leading advocate. They were told that both the Republican and Democratic Parties, those two mighty organizations, had been importuned to give in their adhesion to the suffrage movement, but dared not do it; they threw it overboard, said the delegates who opposed her admission, and we, the National Labor Congress, can't afford to carry it. If we attempt it, it will sink us. This was the sentiment of the Convention; and yet there were found there fifty-five delegates who, believing this, honestly thinking that by voting to admit her they were indorsing woman suffrage, did so vote. This she called a magnificent victory for principle. When it is considered that out of all the members of the State Legislature of Massachusetts, when the question of woman suffrage came before them for final action, only nine were found bold enough to indorse it with their votes, the Association would not be acting fairly if it attributed narrow-mindedness to the Labor Congress because it finally rejected her claims to admission as a delegate. The objection was made in the Congress especially by Mr. WALSH, the delegate from Typographical Union No. 6 of New-York City, that this Workingwomen's Association was not a legitimate labor organization. That it was regarded as such, however, by Mr. SYLVIS, the late President of the Congress, was evident from a letter sent by that gentleman to Mary KELLOGG PUTNAM, in which he requests that lady to use her influence to secure a charter from the Congress, and so take the place to which it is entitled among the regular labor associations of the country. This objection she considered too petty to require further answer. The day after it was voted to admit her a telegram arrived from New-York ordering the delegate from Typographical Union No. 6 to withdraw unless admission was refused her, and this led to a reconsideration of the former vote; and three days having been already consumed in discussing the matter, many delegates otherwise in her favor felt compelled, in order to save the Convention from disintegration, to vote against her admission. This vote stood 53 to 28.

Miss ANTHONY then proceeded to say that she was not merely a trades' unionist, that this Association was not simply a trades' organization. Our plan is not only to aid women to get fair wages for work, but also to philosophize as to labor in its broadest sense, and to discuss the great question, "What can best be done for women in every sphere and department of life?" She thought it would never do to narrow down the organization to the level of mere trades' unionism; the best and highest interests of woman would not admit of it. After complimenting New-England on the fact that only one vote was given against her out of all its aggregate delegation, which she thought was a proof of the great strides that the movement for woman's rights and woman suffrage was making in that section, Miss ANTHONY closed her address by urging the members of the Association to go on with their labors in a spirit of even greater determination than they had manifested in the past.

Mrs. NORTON, although not approving of the action of the Labor Congress, thought that the rejection of the delegate was due in great part to the selection of Miss ANTHONY, who had declared that "the Association was organized to agitate; that it had done its work, and ought to die." She (Mrs. NORTON) had declared, and she declared so now, that if this avowal be true, she was ashamed of being a member of the organization. On the whole, she did not know but that the Labor Congress had done right, as speaking practically the Association was a failure; it had gone up."

Miss ANTHONY, in reply to Mrs. NORTON, read the platform on which the Association was built. It was, she said, a broad one, and embraced every means of elevating women in addition. If it was a failure, Mrs. NORTON should recollect that she herself was one of the originators of and prime-movers in it. But she considered it was not a failure. She then read from the Treasurer's report a statement showing that the amount of $[illegible] had been paid out, and its expenses $[illegible]. Having built up an organization, she would not see it destroyed. She was an unjust imprisonment and from the sentence of death. All the money raised for that unfortunate woman by its means had been sent her, the last remittance, $100, having been dispatched by the speaker only ten days ago. In her (Miss ANTHONY'S) opinion, nothing since the world began had done more for woman than this Association. It was the seed which had brought forth similar organizations all over the country. The women's societies in San Francisco, in Boston, the cooperative societies lately organized in various States, are the outgrowth of this Association. It was a mistake to suppose nothing could be gained by agitation. That was the very life of the movement for woman's amelioration. Those who had the "gift of gab" should agitate and keep agitating; and, for herself, she felt convinced that she was fitted only to keep the world in hot water. If we don't help ourselves, make our wrongs known, men will never help us.

Mrs. E. CADY STANTON then paid a high compliment to Miss ANTHONY for her labors in woman's cause in its various phases, and thought that her presence in the Labor Congress, and the vote she there received, had proven that in the near future women could depend on the workingmen of the country more than on any one else for securing all their just rights, that of the ballot included.

After some further talk, on motion of Miss O'CONNELL, a Committee was appointed to prepare a series of resolutions, protesting against the action of the Labor Congress in refusing to admit Miss ANTHONY as a delegate from this Association. Miss O'CONNELL, Mrs. Dr. LOZIER and Mrs. E. CADY STANTON were appointed as such Committee, and the meeting adjourned till Thursday evening, Sept. 16, at which time (the annual meeting) new officers are to be elected.

THE TURF.

Trotting on Prospect Park To-Day—Lady Thorn and Mountain Boy.

To-day the Prospect Park Course, Brooklyn, will be the scene of a trotting contest of unusual interest, which is producing a vast amount of excitement among sporting men and patrons of the trotting turf. It will be a race of mile heats, best three in five, between Commodore VANDERBILT's famous bay gelding, Mountain Boy, and Mr. J. D. MCMANN's equally celebrated fast mare, Lady Thorn, for a piece of plate of the value of $2,000, given by the Association. It will be a very interesting race, and will be certain to attract a large assemblage.

American Institute.

The American Institute held its regular monthly meeting last evening at the Cooper Institute Building.

In the absence of the President, Mr. THOMAS WILLIAMS was chosen as President pro tem., and Mr. GEORGE PEYTON acted as Secretary. After the reading and adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting, the Committee on Membership reported favorably on forty applications, and on a ballot being taken the Committee's report was unanimously accepted. A letter was then read from LEWIS R. RUTHERFORD in relation to the disposition of $500, placed at his disposal by the Institute for the purpose of photographing the solar eclipse. He explained that the money had not been used, inasmuch as it was found impossible to procure in proper season suitable portable instruments to be used in carrying out the wishes of the Institute. The Committee on Manufactures and Machinery reported that during the past year a large number of new inventions had been examined by the Committee, among which they had found nothing deemed a decided novelty. The Committee disapproved the practice of giving formal favorable reports of the Institute in any invention submitted to it, unless on the fullest examination it is found to be decidedly new and valuable. The Committee had also given much consideration to the subject of city railroads, including those under ground and those elevated, as well as bridge communication with Brooklyn, but did not express in their report to what conclusion, if any, they had come on these subjects.

The report of the Finance Committee showed the balance in the treasury on the 30th of April last to have been $1,048 98. The receipts during the three months ending July 31 last were $5,949 70, and the expenditure during the same period $3,132 65, leaving a balance on hand of $3,866 03.

The Board of Managers reported the preparations for the annual Fair, commencing on the 8th inst., to be in active and successful progress. They had no doubt there would be a large representation, and the Committee were favored this year in having abundant room to receive all that might come.

A report having been called for from the Special Committee on Kerosene Burners, Dr. PARMLEE, on behalf of that Committee, stated that after having examined about sixty different specimens their Chairman had left them, and they were not in a position to report.

One member asked that another President be appointed, or that the Committee be authorized to elect another.

EX-Alderman ELY opposed the motion, and opposed the rendering of any report on the subject until after the Fair. It would be much more appropriate, he said, to appoint a committee to investigate the kerosene oil burned in the lamps rather than the burners, but in any event the owners of these burners should not have their inventions prejudged by a committee before they have had a chance to exhibit at the Fair.

After some further discussion, the whole subject was declared by the President to be out of order, and the Committee was left to dispose of the matter, and render a report when they saw fit.

Mr. NASH then presented a resolution authorizing arrangements to be made for a course of scientific lectures, similar to those delivered last year, under the auspices of the Institute, and appropriating $3,000 for the purpose.

After some discussion, the subject of the lectures was referred to the trustees with power, and the $3,000 placed at their disposal if they saw fit to use it. On motion, the meeting then adjourned.

The Latest Cuban Enterprise.

A report has been circulated to the effect that the advocates of Cuban independence are now busily engaged in fitting out a privateering expedition to harass and prey upon Spanish commerce. The only foundation for the story appears to be the fact that the somewhat notorious steamer Hornet left Philadelphia on Friday evening last in a very strange and sudden manner, from which it is inferred that she is intended to act as a privateer. It is claimed that the vessel was to proceed to Halifax, and subsequently to sail from that port for her ultimate destination, after she had obtained further additions to her crew. Within a day or two past one of the Spanish Consul's detectives named DAVIS visited the United States Marshal's office for the purpose of procuring warrants for the arrest of thirty men, whom he represented to be in Hoboken making ready to go to Canada to join the alleged privateer. The facts were brought to the attention of Assistant District-Attorney JACKSON; the latter, however, demanded that affidavits for violation of the Neutrality laws should first be made—a course which the detective reluctantly declined to take.

The East River Bridge.

A meeting of the East River Bridge Company was to have been held yesterday, but a quorum was not present. A meeting will be held next week, when, it is understood, the Executive Committee will be directed to negotiate for the real estate necessary for bridge purposes in New-York and Brooklyn.

The Weighmaster's Frauds—Decision in the Case of Colonel Spear and General Egan—The Former Discharged and the Latter Held for Trial.

A decision was rendered yesterday afternoon in the case of PERCY B. SPEAR and THOMAS W. EGAN, who recently received separate examinations on the charge of having prepared fraudulent pay-rolls while acting as United States Weighers. In the case of SPEAR, the Commissioner contended that the only evidence implicating the accused in the alleged frauds was that of a witness who proved himself unworthy of belief, and that he would therefore allow his discharge. EGAN was subsequently held for trial in default of $500, on the ground that he had failed to produce sufficient testimony to show his innocence.
